BRYAN TO RUN FOR THE SENATE

Candidacy Will Be Announced Within Few Days

CITIZEN OF FLORIDA

To Contest Re-election of Sen. Trammell Who Seeks Return

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Early announcement of William J. Bryan's candidacy for the United States senate is expected by his friends in Washington, it was made known today.

Bryan is expected to seek the seat now occupied by Senator Park Trammell of Florida. Trammell, a democrat, is completing his first term and will seek renomination and re-election.

Though Bryan is regarded as a Nebraskan he will acquire citizenship in Florida early in April. By that time he will have complied with the law requiring one year's residence in the state as a prerequisite to voting. For many years Bryan's chief ambition has been the senate. He always preferred it, even to the presidency, because of the usual freedom of action it offers. But as a Nebraskan Bryan could not take the democratic nomination for the senate because the Nebraska democracy was about as "wet" as Bryan was "dry."

Nine or ten years ago Bryan bought property in Florida and has lived there at times since. About a year ago he established his home there and has lived there continuously since except when on lecture tours or speaking engagements.

HONOR ATHLETES OF HIGH DON THEIR 'G'

Campus Is Surprised by Letter Bearers in New Emblem

Students at Glendale high were surprised beyond words this morning when "the wearers of the G's" came marching in all dolled up in their new letters. One will ask, "what letters?" Well, they are the letters awarded the boys for hard work on the football field. They are very attractive to look at, being black felt with a very narrow red border, and most of them being worn on a big white, roughneck sweater. All of the boys are as proud as can be of these letters and they will mean a lot to them when they look back in the future years and think of their Al ma Mater. Those who received letters were Gordon Bartow, Fred Stofft, Russell Eiffler, Fred Terzo, who received a star for his second year of football; Johnny Richardson, Steelman Chase, Atwood Dutcher, who received a star for his second year and a bar for being captain; Ronald West, Clifton Clouse, George Fraley, Bob McCourt, Richard Ryan, Cecil Wilson, William "Hoot" Gibson and Chester Green. Coach Hayhurst was rather undecided as to whether he should give the letter to Dick "Fat" Ryan, as he is the only Freshman on the team, but after a few moments of "kidding," in which he had Dick rather frightened, he handed it over. The letters were given to the boys a week ago today, and they had a hard time to keep from wearing them before today.

SNEAK THIEVES OPERATE HERE

Police Reveive Reports of Many Robberies of Small Amounts

Thieves were active in Glendale over the week-end. Thefts ranging from several packs of playing cards to an automobile were reported to the police.

S. C. Butterfield reported that his car was stolen yesterday afternoon from in front of the Intermediate school on Wilson ovenue.

A bag of surgical instruments was stolen from the automobile of Dr. F. F. Thompson which was parked in front of the Roberts and Echols drug store on Saturday evening.

Six packages of playing cards were stolen from the store of A. C. Barlow, at 124 East Broadway.

F. C. Merrick's home at 332 Milford street was robbed on Friday night but was not reported to the police until Saturday. The thief or thieves secured one lady's watch and 50 cents.

Philosophy of Life Is Expressed Tonight in Beautiful Terms

James W. Foley presents tonight a philosophy of life that is terse and understandable. "Obstacles? Overcome them," he says. "Trials? Endure them. Slanders? Ignore them. Enemies? Forgive them. Friends? Deserve them."

Then he says: "An obstacle overcome, an enemy forgiven, a slander despised and ignored, a trial bravely endured, a sorrow borne with courage and dignity—these are the steps along the way to high self-respect."

Could anything be expressed more beautifully? We call your particular attention this evening to "The Listening Post." It is a gem. You will appreciate reading it for it will leave you in a better frame of mind, you will have a finer conception of life and your heart will be filled with gladness.

We could call your attention to other good things on the editorial page of this paper tonight but we want you to stop reading this and turn to "The Listening Post" and enjoy it.

MUSIC MEMORY CONTEST STARTS

Concerts to Be Given at Local Music Shops

Mrs. Spencer Robinson is much gratified over the way the music memory contest, sponsored by the Glendale Music club, is coming along under the chairmanship of Mrs. Dora Gibson. It has been a little slow in starting but is now on the move and concerts are to be given every afternoon this week beginning at 3:30, at the headquarters of the Glendale Music company, 109 North Brand, the Kenny Music shop, 203 North Brand, and the Loomis-Schuck Music company, also on North Brand. At these three places the public will be made very welcome and the records of the ten selections listed for the first week of the contest will be played. Next week at the same time and places the selections for the second week of the contest will be played, and so on until all the numbers (40) have been given. At the end of the fourth week there will be a general assembly at which a program of ten numbers will be presented, taken from the forty selections, and the audience will be given a chance to name them. Prizes will be awarded to those naming correctly the largest number of selections.

These prizes are a very important feature and many have already been donated. The list includes two scholarships from the California Academy of Music, worth $250; $25 in cash from the Glendale Daily Press; $10 from the Glendale Evening News; $10 in cash from the Glendale Music club and an additional $10, to be expended for contest records. ROBERT TAYLOR

First Assistant Scoutmaster in California who helped organize the Tropica troop, the first in California.

A picturesque scene was enacted Saturday afternoon on the steps of the city hall, when Mayor Robinson was officially accepted into the Boy Scouts of the Verdugo Hills, as an honorary tenderfoot, in the presence of Robert Taylor, the grst assistant scoutmaster of California, who organized the Tropico troop, the first unit of the organization in the state.

The above pictures show Eagle Scout Benjamin Robison, Jr., pinning the emblem upon the mayor, and the certificate being given to him by Eagle Scout Robert Searles while the troop of the Verdugo Hills lined up behind their new comrade on the city hall steps.

HI TRUSTEES CONFER WITH ARCHITECTS

The high school board of trustees, which includes Dr. Harry V. Brown, president; Thos. D. Watson, secretary; Daniel Campbell, Mrs. Gardner and H. W. Yarick, met Saturday with the architects who have been commissioned to prepare plans for the proposed new high school, Messrs. John C. Austin of Los Angeles and George Lindsey of this city. Principal George U. Moyse was also present at the conference where the needs of the various departments to be provided for in the initial units of high school buildings, were discussed and the architects instructed to prepare tentative plans and rough estimates on which a call for a bond election could be based.

SHORT CHANGE ARTISTS ARE HERE

The short change artist is at work in Glendale again. He operated here on Saturday and secured $10 each from the dry goods store of H. S. Webb and company and the Sam Seelig company. They worked the same old proposition that was worked in this city several months ago and just recently attempted in Tropico.

The two men entered the stores, made some small purchases and presented a large bill in payment. After receiving the change the men discovered that they had a smaller bill and ask that the large bill be returned to them. While the exchange is being made $10 is extracted from the change returned to the merchant.

Merchants are warned by the police department to be careful in making change and to always count the change and see that it is exact before the customer departs.

Act As Big As You Talk

The released prisoner fresh from confinement, expands in his freedom, talks about it, knows it—but mentally he is within the four walls from which he emerged.

Communities emerging from town size differ little from the individual, rather say the individual limitations limit the community vision.

The exceptional citizen who realizes former limitations no longer exists and is for greater things for wide expansion is regarded as a visionary person, not as a person with vision.

Glendale is on the eve of becoming a big city. A big center. An exceptional gathering of highly intelligent new people.

Yet there still lingers about its character something of credence to old limitations that have been swept away by the bursting growth. Some of the minority, the old-timers, have it very strong. They view with alarm the spreading boundaries, the big bond issues, the thrusting forth into unheard of regions of thought and enterprise.

They are in a changed environment and do not yet realize their own liberation in thought and action.

One thought the Glendale Press wishes to convey which may serve to broaden their horizon, make them realize the new conditions of today in Glendale. It is this:

Glendale has increased more than fifty per cent in population. The new fifty per cent know what they want. Fifty per cent more are on the way to vote with them. They have the money to pay for what they want. If you insist upon protesting and they happen to learn about it, they will go elsewhere and spend there the money they wish to spend here.

They are city men. Don't obstruct them with town limitations. They are going to make Glendale over. Step aside and watch them do it. Every dollar they vote out of the treasury they are willing to put back into it in taxes. And every dollar they put back into it means a dollar to you in enhanced charm of Glendale life, and increased value in your holdings.

Realize your new life. And live it. Act as big as you talk of Glendale. You will cheer the incoming city builders.

Grand, Growing Glendale

(That Glendale has a real poet in its midst was indicated in the city manager's mail when this poem was received, anonymously. Mr. Reeves was so appreciative that he here demands through the Press the name of the author.)

Grand, growing Glendale! Say, ain't she lookin' sweet?
Sunshine drippin' from above and poppies at her feet!
Blossoms bendin' everywhere, and skies of smilin' blue,
And nothin' but the peace of God a-bendin' over you.
Grand, growing Glendale,
Of lowly padre birth;
Queen of all the Western coast,
The paradise of earth!

Grand, growing Glendale, rimmed by mountain walls,
And mossy-banked arroyos, where soft the sunlight falls!
Seas of green and spangled fields, where wondrous colors blend
Into a chain of harmony, that stretches without end.
Grand, growing Glendale!
The pride of all the West!
Favored by the hand of God;
By nature doubly-blessed!

Grand, growing Glendale! Her glory never fades!
Shinin' ever brighter 'neath her varied lights and shades.
Hills bedecked in beauty by a Master Painter fair,
And every rill a-singin' of the glories pictured there.
Grand, growing Glendale!
Her roses nod at you,
While nature smiles her loveliest,
And bids you "Howdy-do!"

POPE CROWNED IN GLITTERING GLOW

The interior of the huge St. Peter's was a glittering glory of gold, jewels and colorful costumes as the triple crown was placed on the new Pontiff's head by a cardinal. DISCONTENT ADDS TO DEFENSIVE ALLIANCE

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Discontent of railway signal men, stripped of overtime pay by a ruling of the United States railroad labor board, added impetus to the proposed "defensive alliance" of railroad and mine workers today.

The railroad board, in a decision, overthrew the working agreements allowing overtime for all work after eight hours. In the future, overtime will only be paid after ten hours' work, although eight hours still remains as the basic day. The regular rate is also to be paid for Sunday and holiday work.

HI-Y BOYS PLAN FUTURE WORK

Leaders of District Outline Seven Objectives at Conference

Hi Y leaders of the district which takes in Burbank and Eagle Rock as well as Glendale, met for a conference and supper at the Glendale Presbyterian church Saturday evening.

Each leader made a report of work of the past six weeks, and Ralph A. Cole, state secretary, who was present brought greetings and complimented the district on the fine reports submitted, saying that "meetings like this are being held all over the state."

David Black, chairman of the board of directors of the district, told why he and his associates were backing the leaders, why they were interested in the work and why their interest has increased from year to year. She he: "The board of directors appreciate what you are doing and how dependent the work is upon your ability and devotion."

The leaders formed an association in September of which W. G. Boys is president and S. H. Wilcox, secretary. Meetings similar to the one held Saturday night take place every six weeks for reports and discussion of coming work.

Seven objectives were mentioned in the program for the coming six weeks with the understanding that six out of the seven would be covered.

For one thing, each group will have a "parents' night," but some of the Y's have already entertained in that way.

Secretary Rex Kelley gave a report of the money that had been spent last year for boys' work in foreign fields and told of the desire of all the boys to have a part in this work. The budget for the coming year is $1,400,000, for foreign boys' work, and the program was therefore made to include the outlook in foreign fields.

Mr. Kelley also suggested efforts to persuade the boys to take the Bible study examination. Each year the Y. M. C. A. has an examination for boys' workers that has been arranged by the international committee in New York and awards are given for the boys that make a passing percent. There is also a silver cup given to the district that has the largest percentage of its membership in the examination.

The program is to include outside activities such as picnics, hikes, games, etc. Another feature will be the entertainment of other

OWEN C. EMERY

Attorney Owen C. Emery of 106 East Broadway has just been appointed justice of the peace of Burbank township to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Harry M. Miller, who served in that capacity for several years. Attorney Emery has lived in this township for years. He was educated in the Glendale grammar schools, from which he moved up to the Glendale high school. Following his graduation from that institution he went through the law school of the University of Southern California. He has been practicing law for eight years in Glendale and Los Angeles.

STRAW VOTES DEMAND A CITY BUS

Only 19 Votes Out of Five Hundred Oppose Project

IS OFFICIAL COUNT

Some Opposition Ballots Mailed From Los Angeles Rejected

Of the 500 votes cast in the straw ballot as to whether or not Glendale should have a municipal bus line there were only 19 cast against the proposition and of this a number were not counted as they were anonymous, mailed from Los Angeles and bore the earmarks of having been marked by corporation employes.

The ballots were counted by C. D. Gulick this morning and seemed an endless task as even the mails today were filled with the ballots. From the first appearance of the ballots in the newspapers of the city each mail brought in large bundles of the votes marked, in the most part as favoring the bus line and the calling of a bond election to finance such a proposition. If the straw vote is an indicator the bonds for the municipal bus will be carried by a large majority when the election for this purpose is called.

In publishing the ballots Mr. Gulick stated that the total cost of establishing the line would approximate $100,000 by using the equipment planned at present but in the ballot the question was asked whether the people would favor a bond issue of $125,000 or less. This was done to give the city officials sufficient leeway in the event that it was decided that the city could give a more efficient service by using more costly equipment than has been figured on.

Several comments on the proposal to operate a municipal bus line between Glendale and Los Angeles indicate that practically the only opposition to the floating of bonds for the line is the fact that it will increase taxes. Mr. Gulick removes this barrier by explaining that the line will in a few months after its beginning be a self sustaining business and that before the end of the year will be in a position to pay at least an 8 per cent dividend. This statement from Mr. Gulick is reassuring inasmuch as he is a transportation expert engaged by the city in the capacity of advisor in the establishment of the bus line.

The hearing before the Los Angeles public utilities board in the matter of granting a permit to the city of Glendale to operate a bus line in Los Angeles which was scheduled for today, has been postponed. The city offices of Los Angeles are closed today in observance of Lincoln's birthday. Mr. Gulick and a delegation of city officials will appear before the board at that body's next sitting on Thursday.

PASADENA FIRM OPENS BRANCH AT EAGLE ROCK

Reynold and Eberle, Undertakers, Establish Local Branch

Reynolds & Eberle, who for years have conducted a high-class undertaking establishment in Pasadena, at the corner of Fair Oaks and Union avenues, now announce the opening of funeral parlors in Eagle Rock at 116 orth Castle avenue, a central location. For weeks they have been remodeling the building and equipping it with the most up-to-date appliances, paying special attention to a home-like atmosphere in the parlors. They invite the inspection of the public. The chapel facilities are ample and their ambulance service without a superior. From long experience in the details of service at a time of bereavement, Reynolds & Eberle are prepared to give efficient personal attention on call at any hour of the day or night.

Mr. Reynolds has already identified himself with the community, being a regular attendant at the Congregational church services and mid-week lectures, where he has met many of the townspeople. At the recent reception to new members he revealed a gift of poesy of the highest order, which forms part of his daily life. In such a man, those who are sorrowing will find a sympathetic friend.

EAGLE ROCK GIRL IS AN INVENTOR

An Eagle Rock girl, Miss Rena S. Lawrence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Lawrence, of 136 Virginia avenue, who has been employed in San Francisco for some years, has invented and patented an automobile wheel lock that is attracting considerable attention, and for which she has been offered $2500. A design of it and a brief description was printed in the Scientific American for January. Its motive is to prevent the theft of a car. The lock is made fast to the hub and one spoke of the wheel, with one end extending beyond the rim. This arrangement causes readily traceable marks in the road and a bumping noise as the car travels. It also prevents a removal of the wheel when locked and obstructs its rotation.

Listening in on Eve

WHY THEY REMAINED AT HOME

(The girl with the new wedding ring speaks over the telephone.)

"Say, Gert, that you? How are you?

"Sure I am. Say, girlie, I got something to tell you. Listen, kid. Ain't men funny?

"Oh, I don't know. Every way, I guess. Honest to Pete, I nearly die laughing at Jim sometimes. He's so comical.

"Oh I don't mean like that, not when he means to be funny, though he's just 's jolly's he can be and awful—you know—good company and like that. I mean when he don't mean to be funny, but he just is, anyway, when he does something like a kid and don't know it's like all men do.

"Say, girlie, you remember Jim's Aunt Sarah, the one that sent us the swell ice tea pitcher set and that owns her own home and that ain't got any children or like that except a funny old dog? Well, I couldn't see for the life of me why Jim shouldn't be kind of nice to her, just like he would to anybody. Well, the other night I kinda made up my mind there wasn't no particular reason why he shouldn't do it, so at supper I says to him, 'Jim,' I says to him, 'I was over to your ma's today and she thinks it ud be kinda nice if you'd go over and see your Aunt Sarah.' 'All right,' Jim says.

"Well, after we was through supper and I'd got the dishes washed up and the kitchen floor kind of swept up a little I went into the living room and who should be sitting there reading the paper like he never had no thought of going no place ever no more but Jim? I says to him, 'Hadn't you ought to be kinda cleaning up to get ready to go?' I says.

"'Go where?' Jim says, just 's innocent. 'Over to Aunt Sarah's,' I says.

"'Oh, was it tonight we was going?' and then Jim says he'd been kinda thinking maybe he'd ought to stay home and write to his sister Maude out in California. He'd been thinking of doing it for quite some time, he says.

"Well, I says back at him, seeing how Maude had been to California six months and he hadn't felt no call to write her yet, I thought he could put it off one night. Well, he says, maybe that was so.

"But he hadn't no more than went into the bathroom to start to commence to clean up than he come right out again and says he guessed maybe we'd better go over to granny's and go to Aunt Sarah's some other night. I said we was over to his granny's a couple of nights ago and we hadn't never been to Aunt Sarah's since we was there to thank her for the ice tea set. Jim says, like he was real kinda surprised, 'That's so, ain't it?'

"Then he went into the bedroom to finish his dressing. I guess it took him as much as ten minutes to think up the next thing. Then he said he couldn't find no clean collar—when they was a million right in the drawer where his collars always is. After that it was his handkerchiefs and one thing and another, but after while he did get ready.

"Just as we were starting out the door I remember about some gelatin jell I made just after supper and set it on the window sill to get hard and I says to Jim wouldn't he go out in the kitchen and take it in and set it on the table till we come home.

"I'd ought to 'a' had more sense! After about a minute I heard a kind of a noise and I hustled out and there was Jim with that jell spilled all over him, shoes, pants and coat and everything. Can you beat that?

"I don't know as he did it on purpose, but it sure looked kinda funny when he'd been working so hard to keep from going to his Aunt Sarah's.

"Oh, I was so mad I didn't say nothing. I just said, 'Well, if you ain't the bunk artist,' and Jim says, 'What do you mean, bunk artist?' And I says, 'Spoiling your clothes and everything just to keep from not doing something you don't want to do! That's why,' I says.

"He just looked awful big eyed. "Sure, we didn't. A person can't stay mad at Jim. And anyway—say, dearie, can't you and Ed come over after supper and play Rummy? I got something to show you. You remember that swell waist you and me was rubbering at the other day over on the avenoo? Well, say, girlie, what do you think? Jim, he stopped on his way home tonight and bought it for me. What do know about that? And he brought me a swell box of candy, too. I guess maybe it kind of paid for him not to go to Aunt Sarah's, what?"

The Once Over

THE INNBADDS DISCUSS HUSBANDS

By H. I. PHILLIPS

"Have you noticed today's quotations on husbands?" asked Ignatius Innbadd.

"Quotations?" returned Mrs. Innbadd.

"Yeah," replied Ignatius. "Ain't you heard about this new idea of disposing of husbands by the share? They'll list 'em on the Stock Exchange soon. . . . American Husbands, Common and Preferred."

"Where do you get that stuff?" asked the wife. "What are you raving about?"

"Ain't you read about this Boston young man who turned down an inheritance of $1,600,000 a year ago, but who has now decided to accept it for use in fixing up a little domestic difficulty?" asked Innbadd.

"Oh, I've read something about him," replied Mrs. Innbadd. "He's in love with another woman, ain't he?"

"Yeah," replied Ignatius. "There are three sides to it, if not more, but the wife claims, according to the papers, that her husband came home with the other woman, the proposition being made that all three settle down quietly together and live happily ever after."

"I'd like to have been in that wife's shoes," declared Mrs. Innbadd, rolling up both sleeves.

"Well, the other woman was very fair about it, according to the report," replied Ignatius. "She promised not to make any fuss if the wife wouldn't. She's quoted here as saying she is perfectly willing to share the young man with his wife, but that the wife won't agree to it. It's funny how stubborn a wife can be about a thing like that!"

"What did the wife say?" asked Mrs. Innbadd.

"I suppose she told him that if he had any ideas about improving the interior decorations of their little farmhouse he could start furnishing it with furniture instead of blondes," replied Innbadd.

"What did the husband say?" asked Mrs. Innbadd.

"Oh, he has very novel ideas," explained Ignatius. "F'rinstance, he can't see any justice in a social order that allows a man to have a million or more dollars but not more than one mate. He says money is a non-essential. That, to my mind, proves that no matter how many girls may figure in his life he has never taken them out to lunch."

"Who is this husband, anyhow?" asked Mrs. Innbadd. "Is he prominent?"

"It says he comes of Tudor stock. I suppose that's a branch of the well-known Sweetpa-Tudor family. Some of the Tudors have odd ideas about domestic happiness. Henry the Eighth was a Tudor."

"What did Henry do?" asked the wife.

"He upset the church by his fight to bounce Queen Kittie of Cloves and marry Ann Boleyn."

"Who was Anna Boleyn?"

"She was of the famous Boleyn-Alley family. But, getting back to the Tudors, I understand the wife doesn't mind his being a Tudor but objects to his becoming a Threedor or a Fourdor. A year ago when this feller turned down the $1,600,000 he was interviewed in his bare feet on a Cape Cod farm where he said that money in large lumps would only make him and the wife unhappy."

"I suppose he didn't mind making her unhappy through another woman, but didn't want to do it with money," said Mrs. Innbadd with biting sarcasm.

"The other woman says that all the young man wants is freedom and spiritual growth," said Innbadd. "She says she wouldn't touch a dime of the $1,600,000 and that the young man is willing to settle most of that upon his wife. If I should blow home some afternoon with a young woman and some such proposition what would you do?"

"If you had $1,600,000 to offer me I'd take it," replied Mrs. Innbadd. "Then I'd see that you got freedom and spiritual growth. But you'd be well banked with evergreens and roses when you got them."

"Pardon me while I run out and buy a paper of tobacco," remarked Innbadd nervously.

Dumm and Dummer on the Bill to Bar Racing News

"What're you doing now?" asked Senator Dumm, as he came upon Representative Dummer sitting in a snowbank and struggling with the sporting section of a newspaper.

"I'm trying to read a racing report," returned Dummer. "Look-it this thing!"

Senator Dumm leaned over his shoulder and saw the following:

FAIR GROUNDS, Jan. 26.—The MuHigatawney Handicap was won today by (deleted). (Deleted) was second and (deleted) third. When the barrier went up (omitted by the censor) got off to a flying start, but was soon crowded by (eliminated by postal authorities). At the third furlong pole . . . . . broke through an opening and soon passed (name withheld by Purity league). From that time on (deleted) had the race all to himself. The odds were*

*(Until he sees his lawyer the publisher does not think it best to quote the prices.)

"It's highly informative, ain't it?" remarked Senator Dumm.

"Well, what does it all mean? Is it a new puzzle contest to promote the circulation of this particular newspaper or what?" asked Dummer.

"It's a result of the agitation in congress to prohibit the newspapers from printing any racing news," explained Dumm. "The bill hasn't been passed, but the editor of your paper is evidently playing it safe in case it should be passed before press time. In the United States today nobody knows in the morning what may be unconstitutional by night."

"What's the idea of prohibiting racing news, anyhow?" asked Dummer, peevishly. "Have the horses become too modest to like their names in print or are some of the jockeys afraid the news of how rotten they are riding will get back home to their relatives and friends?"

"Don't you know that racing is immoral, vicious, degrading, criminal, and debasing, and that it is responsible for the ruination of thousands of men? Don't you realize that racing sends many a man home to his wife Saturday night with his pay-roll squandered? Don't you know, Dummer, that the racetrack drives countless hundreds to embezzlement and other dishonesty? Don't you know that it leaves a trail of blighted happiness and saddened firesides?"

"I thought it was the SALOON AND LIQUOR EVIL that did all them things," said Dummer with a blank look.

"That's what the reformers used to say," admitted Dumm, "but now they think racing, smoking, dancing, put and take, and even singing while in the bathtub each has something to do with it."

"I wouldn't be surprised if a law went through one of these days making 'em cut out the practice of giving an extra ride to the goop who grabs a brass ring on the merry-go-rounds," said Dummer. "The horses on these carousels certainly have an evil effect upon the public mind, and any scheme to tempt a man to ride on one more than once must be a menace to the republic, in the opinion of the Blue Law Beaglehounds."

"As I understand it, the proposed bill will prevent any newspaper from publishing any racing results, odds or selections," said Dumm. "Thus, it will be impossible for a man to find out in advance what horses are to race."

"As far as that goes it always has been impossible to tell in advance what horses were going to race. Every one I bet on showed by the result that he had no intention of racing," returned Dummer.

"It will make it impossible for you to find out except by the aid of a clairvoyant what horse won," continued Dumm.

"And it would be just my luck to have my clairvoyant in the employ of my bookmaker," said Dummer sadly.

Bears

By JOHN BRECK

I am warned that it will probably be my fate to be eaten by a bear—not the noble grizzly, nor the monster kodiak, but a common, ornery cinnamon—likely a lady one. In moments of sober reflection I feel quite credulous. Yet these moments never come when a claw-scarred slide shows where Bruin went a-fishin.'

Then I want to follow down stream and see how those clumsy paws ever seize the shining prey which slips through mine. Does the animal smell or the oil in his shaggy fur actually lure them to their fate, or does he only succeed when they crowd so thickly it is catch-as-catch-can? Accounts differ. Or to watch the noisy, snuffing dig-out of a ground squirrel, with an even bet that it will dodge between his bowed hind legs (that would not stop even a pig) and be dug a second time. Or to catch him sneaking onto the plowed land, as the jangling team plods home to profit by its wholesome methods with a dainty tongue.

'Tis an ambition not easily achieved, thanks to his eternal "nosefulness." Bruin's eyes are not like the eagle's; he squints in the sun. Nor are his ears backed by the skull-built sounding-boards which make theh dog's so keen. But his nose is superlative; it notes not only the wind but every seeping air-current, every eddy of scent that curls about a thicket or hangs above the surface of a stream. Then he miraculously vanishes. Only a mother bear, unconfident of the woodcraft of her cubs, seems likely to show fight.

And hers is the courage of desperation. No wild creature faces greater problems. Her babies are helpless for a longer time than any but human children. It takes more teaching to complete their education. They must know nature's larder from the top-shelf nest in a tree to the cellar of an ant-hill.

Every paw is against her. She dares not even hibernate in the wintertime, but dozes, perpetually on watch from the time her cubs are born for the wolverine, or even the mink. When they start to ramble wolves and wildcats lie in wait for them. Up on the McKenzie river the grizzly is her mortal foe. He has found that his little cousin is the easiest and tastiest morsel he can catch to break a Lenten fast of easy fishing. And he knows all their tricks, bear-fashion.

What wonder then, that Mother Flat-foot's temper is set to a hair-trigger? But what wonder that to watch her keen wits at work would be fascinating?

ROOT OF DIVORCE SEEN IN WRONG HOME TRAINING

Rev. Cole of Christian Church Preaches on National Evil

The 19th chapter of Matthew was the basis for Rev. C. A. Cole's Sunday morning sermon at Central Christian church, and he considered it in three sub-topics, "The Severe Evil," "Christ and the Children" and "The Rich Young Ruler." The Master's pronouncement against divorce was dwelt upon and Rev. Cole said: "According to Jesus' teaching, not mine, he that divorceth his wife for any cause save that of unfaithfulness to the marriage vow, and marrieth another, commiteth adultery; and he that marrieth her that is put away commiteth adultery also. That is why most Christian ministers refuse to re-marry divorced people, because the Head of the church taught otherwise."

Rev. Cole laid the fault of most divorces to wrong training in the home. If boys and girls were taught to respect and reverence the opposite sex and to fear God, divorces would be very few, he said. He is in favor of a law that would forbid all marriages that were not publicly announced 30 days in advance. "We pay ten times as much for reformation as for information," was the striking statement. "I we would spend even half the sum required to reform or punish evil-doers in teaching them how to live, our taxes would be marvelously reduced."

The Saviour's love for children and their importance in the kingdom was touched upon, and an earnest plea was made for more devotedness in caring for them in the church. The menace of great riches, the danger of their weaning one away from the church, and the right use of money, were dwelt upon. The folly of a man working all his life to amass riches to leave to his children who would be harmed rather than helped by the bequest, was deplored, and that money, rightly used, was one of the world's greatest blessings.

The evening address was preceded by the singing of "Beautiful Flag of Liberty," and a brief address on Lincoln by J. H. Garnsey of 438 Vine street, a member of the congregation, who told of his intimate association with the Lincoln boys in Chicago during the campaign of 1860. Lincoln himself being away, constantly campaigning, Mr. Garnsey, then a boy in his teens, was a member of the Chicago Wideawakes, a marching club that bore torches while the men carried rails in honor of the "railsplitter candidate." The Lincoln family lived in Springfield until after the convention, then moved to Chicago. They lived not far from the Garnsey home and attended the Lincoln school, where Mr. Garnsey and Tad Lincoln, the youngest boy, were seat mates. The death of the various members of the Lincoln family were touched upon and Mr. Garnsey told more of his early life with them.

Rev. Cole's sermon was on the healing of the cripple at the pool of Bethesda and from this incident in the life of the Master he drew some needed lessons.

CHICAGO 'PONZI' COST MILLIONS

Thousands of Stockyard Lose in Crash of Brischoff

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—Thousands of stockyards workers in "Little Poland" whose savings were wiped out in the crash of Raymond A. Bischoff, Chicago's "Ponzi," will receive but ten cents on the dollar, his attorneys said today.

Bischoff was under surveillance of federal operatives pending the bankruptcy hearing before Federal Judge Landis tomorrow.

Authorities state that $4,500,000 was involved in his financial crash. Practically the entire sum came from savings of the 6000 foreign-born in the "back o' yards district," it was said.

Bischoff blamed his crash in a plot of enemies to ruin him.

LINCOLN PROGRAM AT HIGH SCHOOL

A Lincoln's birthday program was given in the auditorium of the Glendale high school today. In order for all of the students to attend it was necessary to give the program twice. Miss Maude E. Soper talked on the life and characteristics of Lincoln, giving many anecdotes illustrating the kindliness and wit of the man.

Pansy Shelton told of the songs of the Civil War days and their origin. She also sang several of these songs. The program ended with a flag salute and all of the pupils singing "Star Spangled Banner."

VIGILANTES AT MARYSVILLE

MARYSVILLE, Calif., Feb. 13.—Pledged to a campaign to rid Marysville of vice and criminals, eleven citizens were appointed at a mass meeting here last night to act with the mayor, city council and police as a morality vigilance committee. "Clean Marysville of bootleggers and criminals" was the slogan adopted by the mass meeting.

HEIRESS TO MILLIONS, 45 AND RUSSIAN, 23, WHO WORKS IN OVERALLS TO WED

Anastase Andrevitch Vonsiatskoy-Vonsiatskoy, who fought in several of the anti-Bolshevik armies in Russia and now employed as a chemist at the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia, is to wed Mrs. Marion Buckingham Ream Stephens, heiress to millions in New York city. She is one of the seven children of the late Norman B. Ream of Chicago, whose estate was estimated as worth about $40,000,000 when he died. She is 45 years old, he 23. Mrs. Stephens was divorced in 1918 by Redmond D. Setphens, a Chicago lawyer, on a charge of desertion. Following the divorce she went to Europe to engage in war work and met Vonsiatskoy-Vonsiatskoy. He will continue at the Baldwin works after their marriage.

PIGEON SHOOTING AT MONTE CARLO IS PROTESTED

Americans Protest Shooting of Live Birds at Casino

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 13.—Despite the pressure of American and British public opinion, voiced by hundreds of humane visitors, the shooting of live, tame pigeons for sport continues this year on the terraces of the Casino.

Prizes amounting to 200,000 francs during the season are offered to the "sportsmen" who kill or maim the greatest number of birds.

The doves are bred as pet pigeons, who roost on the Casino roof and strut on the Casino lawns and walks oblivious to fate.

One day when he is feeling most optimistic, Monsieur Piegon is seized and thrust into a dark square box, just big enough to hold him.

Suddenly, some time after, the four sides of the box fly open. The pigeon, bewildered, flys towards light and freedom. There is a report. He flutters to earth to flap his wings in agony until a trained dog retrieves him and carries him towards a merciful knife and eventual pigeon pie.

If the piegon is not brought down by the first shot, a second is allowed. These shots, fired by trained marksmen attracted by the large prizes, are from a distance of less than forty yards. Misses are infrequent. When they do take place, the crowd gathered on the Casino terraces to watch, generally cheers the pigeon.

From the point of view of the marksman, the "sport" consists in not knowing which of five pigeon containing boxes is going to fly open. These boxes are controlled electrically from switches operated at a point not visible to the contestant.

Word was spread earlier in the season that, because of numerous protests, clay pigeons would be substituted for live birds. The clay pigeons, according to a Casino official, are not yet ready for use. When they will be, says the official, live and clay pigeon shooting will be alternated for the remainder of the season.

An effort will be made by resident Americans and English to have the shooting of live pigeons abolished altogether after this year.

POLICE ISSUE WARNING

Chief of Police Allen Martin has made a request that all of the housewives of Glendale notify the police department whenever a peddler calls at the door and becomes insistent that the wares be purchased.

Mr. Martin stated this morning that he has received several reports regarding one peddler who has been operating in Glendale during the past few days. This peddler, according to police reports, becomes very insulting in the event that he cannot induce the housewives to purchase his wares.

Chief Martin announces that every report regarding these peddlers will be investigated and if the vender cannot give a clear statment regarding his activities he will be forced to leave the city.

Don't imagine that you have great will power because you have never had occasion to test it.

The custom that doth breed a habit in a man is probably the custom tailor.

MILITIA MEN LOSE TO SEMON'S MEN AT BASKETBALL

Glendale Team Meets First Defeat, Fighting Hard Until End

The basketball team of Glendale's company M, National Guards, entered in the A. A. U., went down to defeat for the first time since entering the league on Saturday night. The slaughter was committed by the Larry Semon team and the final score read 36 to 22 in favor of the Semons. Both teams played a fast game but the "movie bunch" proved to be the fastest players. Murray Rock starred for the Semons.

Max Price made several brilliant plays for the Glendale quintette as did Carl Jensen and other members of the Glendale team. A return game will be played with the Semon team in about three weeks.

The Glendale team will play the Los Angeles City Men's club tomorrow at that club's gymnasium in Los Angeles.

CERRITOS MOVIE PICTURES SUCCEED

About $40 was realized from the two moving picture shows given at Cerritos avenue school Saturday evening, good crowds being present at both showings. The money will go to a fund that is being raised to purchase a mimeograph outfit for the school to be used in the sending out of notices and other work which calls for duplications in large numbers.

It is surprising how much more willing a man is to give up his turn in a dental parlor than in a barber shop.

NOTICE IN REGARD TO DELIVERY ORDERS

We wish to take this opportunity to heartily thank the people of Glendale for their generous support at the opening of our Glendale store. While we were greatly pleased to receive such a volume of business, we regret exceedingly that we were not better prepared to give better service—especially in our delivery department. We received so many delivery orders that we could make no promises when orders would be delivered—simply stating we would deliver as soon as possible.

Practically all of the 58 employees used the opening day were new help—and unfamiliar with Ralphs' ways and prices.

As soon as these difficulties are overcome we will endeavor to make nearly all parts of Glendale twice a day. Within a few blocks of the store we will try to make three or four deliveries per day.

Flour, sugar, potatoes, coal oil and grain are sold 40 cents per 100 lbs. cheaper on carry-away orders than on delivery orders.

Thousands of other items in Meats, Groceries, Candies, Bakery Goods and Fruits and Vegetables are the same price, whether carried away or delivered—provided the order is $2 or over. On delivery orders less than $2 we make a nominal charge of 10 cents for delivery.

Truths in Epigram

Love thyself and many will hate thee.—Unknown.

Nothing is stronger than custom.—Ovid (43 B.C.-18 A.D.).

The difficulty in life is the choice.—Moore (1855 ——).

Where it is a duty to worship the sun it is pretty sure to be a crime to examine the laws of heat.—Morley (1838 ——).

THE WHITE MAN'S BURDEN

Perhaps the willingness to take up "the white man's burden" has led to excess in its ultimate expression in conduct. There may be cited against this willingness the fact that sometimes there has been too much taken. It is possible that there has been some misconception as to what properly constitutes the burden in question. Nevertheless the white man, the term being used in a broad sense, does have certain responsibilities towards weaker people. For him to evade these is to shirk performance of a plain duty. The United States has several responsibilities of this character. One such lies in the Philippines, another in Haiti.

This country has done much for the Philippines. In a brief term of years it has supplied them with the means of education, and the machinery of government and justice. It has drawn native ability more and more into executive station. The islanders have the promise of independence, a promise given in good faith, and which there is no desire to break or to modify. When fitness for self-government has been demonstrated they will have self-government, and none will attempt to deny. To loose them now would be ruinous, for the process of salvation is not complete.

Another, somewhat different problem, exists in Haiti. To Haiti this country is under no obligation but that imposed by humanity. The islanders are ignorant, superstitious and savage. At every time they have been permitted to conduct their own affairs they have turned the government into an orgy of blood and voodoo horror. The presence of a small armed force from the United States insures them peace and safety. The force is there, and is all that keeps Haiti out of a condition of turmoil and worse than anarchy.

Thus the Haitian becomes a part of the white man's burden, and must be carried despite his refusal to appreciate a kindness.

SENATOR PEPPER SPEAKS

Pennsylvania's newest senator has made a speech in defense of the disarmament conference. It was an excellent address. Even the fact that he made an address at all is significant. It shows that he has an ability in at least one direction, never possessed by his predecessor.

The address was in reply to former Governor Cox of Ohio, who had viewed the conference as a step in the direction sought to be taken by the League of Nations. Cox had defended the league as "simple and sufficient." Pepper said of the league that it was "a grandiose scheme, bad in conception, worse in execution," while the conference "had been undertaken in a proper spirit." He was ready for a comparison of results.

On the showing of fact Pepper undoubtedly has the better of he controversy. At the same time it is impossible for the observer who desires to be fair and to drop all partisan bias, to hold that Cox is wholly in error. A similar principle doubtless actuated both moves, one of which resulted in failure, the other having the aspect of success.

There were republicans in plenty, some of them, as for instance Lodge, prominent in the organization, who in advance of a formal proposal favoring a league of nations, had advocated precisely such a plan. That they reversed themselves never has been explained on other grounds than that they would not uphold a plan that had the advocacy of their political foes.

Had a conference such as the one just closed been devised by a democratic administration, there is not the slightest evidence that it could have won republican support. In other words, a politician is a politician, and he does not often rise to the duty of serving his country unless he may serve it to the advantage of the party to which he belongs. To the average legislator, and the legislator far above the average, party comes first.

The people of this country are pleased with the results of the conference, because they believe the results make the world peace. They believed also that the League of Nations was framed for like purpose and would have had like effect. It is quite useless, even for so able a gentleman as Senator Pepper to tell them that the league idea was all wrong, and the conference idea fine and high, for the two ideas were identical, save as to detail; born of precisely the same hope.

ANYTHING FOR PROFIT

Investigators in New York found a peculiar condition at a saloon in the Bronx. The saloonkeeper there had become rich since the passage of prohibition. At the same time he had paid out in the form of bribes the sum of $52,000. He deemed this amount so trifling that he had not even added it up. The investigators came upon the memoranda, and footed the items.

This money had been paid out in driblets of $5 to $500. It was the price of exemption from arrest.

The country is afforded the spectacle of a saloon, that should have been closed and abolished by the existing law, not only kept open but doing a business that won the proprietor a quick fortune. The incident shows the difficulty of the task of enforcing the law.

The spirit of commercialism, taking the form of greed, quickly become criminal in its operations.

From time to time there is the revelation of vast deals in illicit drugs. The profits in handling these poisons is nothing less than stupendous. Often it drug, in order to get what he deems his essential supply, must pay more than the ordinary income of an industrious and competent citizen. In his desperation he turns thief, forger, embezzler or assassin. The drug addict has no conscience and no shred of morals. He reaches a condition where he does not know right from wrong. He is an irresponsible and ravening lunatic.

Perhaps a way to curb and to destroy these lines of traffic would be to eliminate the profit. If the men who sold deadly liquor and worse than deadly drugs were punished, the acquisition of profits would cease, for the offenders would be where the business would cease.

BLIGHTED BY BOLSHEVISM

There is a statement, apparently from authentic source, that the soviet government of Russia is using the Red Cross, emblem of mercy, in order that bolshevism may prey upon the charity of the world. Whether or not the statement is true, it is bound to check the widespread impulse of charity. Suffering in Russia, as a consequence, will be prolonged and accentuated. Even the most charitable could feel under no obligation to feed the marauding red hordes. The suspicion that it may be feeding them is sure to chill the ardor of humanity.

That millions of people in Russia are starving, or near starving, appears to be established as a certainty. There are efforts in progress to allay their distress. Could the allegation of misuse and diversion of the supplies that are being forwarded, be proved, the supplies would dwindle or vanish. The desire to feed the hungry of Russia does not embrace any consideration for the welfare of the regime that is largely to blame for the presence of famine there.

Bolshevism rests under suspicion of all intelligent peoples. It could not make an overture in any direction or for any purpose, that would be regarded as in good faith. It blights all that it touches. It even stays the willing and generous hand that is ready to bear food to the wronged and agonized peasantry.

Californians will be glad to know that the navy department is desirous of accepting the site for a submarine base at San Pedro. The proffer of the site was a fine stroke of public enterprise. The station at San Pedro gained a reputation for training men to high efficiency in the war, but the quarters then occupied were not spacious enough for the contemplated permanent establishment.

Without awaiting senatorial action the President has ordered cessation of work on a number of capital ships. There could have been no finer exhibition of sincerity on the part of the administration. It hardly is conceivable that members of the republican party would oppose ratification of the conference findings, or that doing so, they still could be members of the party. Borah and La Follette are republican now only by courtesy.

It is almost unbelievable that any faction in Germany would unite with bolshevists in furtherance of a strike, or of anything else. Germany is not having a path of roses to tread, and the road of progress is beset with obstacles, not insuperable. But bad as its condition may be in some respects, it is wonderfully prosperous, virile and happy in outlook, compared with the pitiful wreck of that which once was Russia.

Honor compels us to tell a man his faults to his face, but the law of self-preservation makes it safer to tell his neighbor.

FEBRUARY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

"All things are not what they seem," sang Little Buttercup, and we agree with her as heartily as the chorus.

Particularly when we think of February.

February is the shortest month in the year, only it is not. It just seems so. Really it is the longest month.

It drags. It never gets done.

It is the last of winter. Winter was all right in December, with its sleigh-bells and Christmas time; but along about February, when it is slush and influenza, it gets on our nerves.

It is like a bore who will not go away.

It is like the woman caller who stands at the door and talks half an hour after she has said good-bye.

It is like the last third of the parson's sermon, which goes on after he has had many a splendid opportunity to quit.

It is like the last few sticks in the cord of wood, which everyone knows are the hardest to saw.

It is like paying off a mortgage after the house has burned down.

It is like the last year of the war.

It is like old age when one has last interest in everything.

I never knew anyone who liked February.

It is nothing but a month.

It contains Washington's birthday and Lincoln's, and Saint Valentine's day. And once every four years it contains an extra day.

But that is all that can be said for it.

All other seasons have their delights. Anybody can be good in spring, when the grass is greening and flowers preening. And summer is the time for holidays and loafing. And autumn is rich in fruits. And winter has its keen delights. But February is just—blu.

The little runt makes a feeble effort to be funny by bringing around leap year once every four years, and giving the old maids a chance. But I have never noticed that it did them much good. Before they learn how to use it, they are too old.

Besides this, it messes up the calendar. It has two days less than any other month most of the time, but we cannot even depend upon that, for every once in a while it has only one day less.

Somewhere, I suppose, in the wise counsels of destiny, February has its purpose. But as far as mortal mind can see, it is only just another thing to be lived through—like the measles or the chicken-pox.

AT THE LISTENING POST

Obstacles?
Overcome them.
Trials?
Endure them.
Tasks?
Do them.

* * *

Sorrows?
Bear them.
Responsibilities?
Discharge them.
Obligations?
Meet them.

* * *

Slanders?
Ignore them.
Enemies?
Forgive them.
Friends?
Deserve them.

* * *

So we might go on listing the things of life and disposing of them.

And you will say easier said than done.

Which is true of everything in life.

Easier said than done.

* * *

But that saying is the refuge of the dodger.

And the slacker.

Why should we wish for easy things anyway?

It is the hard things that strengthen and develop.

The easy things make us flabby and smug and sluggish.

* * *

The athlete undergoes a grueling training.

Diet, exercise, rest, sleep, play, every hour of the day a time of discipline and regulation.

That he may win a race.

Achieve a single victory.

* * *

And here is life.

With innumerable prizes to be won.

Wealth and fame if you choose to call them prizes.

Although they are not the greatest prizes of life.

* * *

The greatest prizes of life are quiet and peace and serenity and self-respect and usefulness and health and happiness and things like that.

And they do not always come with wealth and fame.

Often serenity and peace and happiness fly out of the window when wealth and fame come in at the door.

* * *

But whatever we may consider the prizes, we can't win them without training.

The mind and moral fibre need training and discipline and regulation in the same way that the muscles of the athlete need them.

There is such a thing as being morally and spiritually trained and fit and in trim.

* * *

And that fitness comes from constant struggle against the desire for ease.

Against the flabby nature that would quit.

Against the weakness of irresolution.

Against all the frailties and cowardice of the spirit.

* * *

A task done at the command of the will when the ease-loving part of us rebels and must be overcome is more than a task done.

It is a victory accomplished.

A step along the way to the prize.

* * *

An obstacle overcome, an enemy forgiven, a slander despised and ignored, a trial bravely endured, a sorrow borne with courage and dignity—these are steps along the way to high self-respect.

And eventual serenity and happiness.

SONGS OF THE POETS

The Book of the World—By William Drummond (1585-1649)

Of this fair volume which we World do name,
If we the sheets and leaves could turn with care,
Of him who it corrects, and did it frame,
We clear might read the art and wisdom rare;
Find out his power which wildest powers doth tame,
His providence extending everywhere,
His justice which proud rebels doth not spare,
In every page, no, period of the same.
But silly we, like foolish children, rest
Well pleased with colored vellum, leaves of gold,
Fair dangling ribbons, leaving what is best,
On the great Writer's sense ne'er taking hold;
Or, if by chance we stay our minds on aught,
It is some picture on the margin wrought.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

CONFERENCE KEPT TO DUTY

[New York Evening Post]

Washington has been cancelling steamer reservations across both oceans with a degree of frequency which leaves no doubt that Charles E. Hughes is still on the job. Arthur Balfour and Baron Kato have postponed their departure for home; the connection with President Harding's statement that the Shantung question must be settled is obvious. This is a repetition of the Hughes touch of the first day of the conference. Back in the third week of November there were observers on the spot who spoke of the conference as virtually over. With naval reduction agreed upon, everything else would be formal and empty gesture. After that the conference was to be over surely by Christmas, and after that by the middle of the present month. The prospects are now good for the conference sitting into February.

Our delegates at the conference, and President Harding himself, could not have acted otherwise. For the conference to adjourn without a settlement of the Shantung problem would have been to refuse to China the minimum of service that she had a right to expect. On other phases of the Chinese problem the American public might be reconciled to agreements in principle with details to be worked out by international commissions. But Shantung for two years has been presented to the American public as a moral issue. Shantung was one of the two big indictments against Mr. Wilson, the other being Article X. The American public has been strenuously educated to the thought that armament reduction in the Pacific would be of little avail without the removal of the causes of irritation in the Far East, and Shantung was the greatest of these.

President Harding is right in thinking that the conference should sit until Shantung has been disposed of. Any other decision would be a denial of elementary justice to China and an indictment of serious failure against the conference as a whole.

ALCOHOL AS A MEDICINE

[New York Times]

An attempt has been made by the journal of the American Medical association to find out what value the doctors of this country place on alcohol in the treatment of disease. Professional opinion is divided; the answers to the questionnaire sent to over 13,000 physicians in nineteen states have revealed a majority of only 178 declaring that whisky was not necessary for the successful practice of medicine. The verdict against beer was very much larger—over 7000.

The figures collected are divided according to states. More would have been told, probably, if the division had been according to the age of those answering the questions. The history of medicine is full of instances of the refusal of elderly doctors to accept new ideas and to reject old ones, and they have persecuted medical heretics with almost theological ferocity. Scandals of this sort have abounded in every age since the authority of Galen began to be questioned.

If it were disclosed that it is the old doctors who cling to alcohol as a drug, and the younger ones who can and do get along without its use, that fact would be far more significant than are the majorities presented by the Journal—majorities, by the way, that were almost inevitable after the action on the subject taken some years ago at a convention of the association.

There, too, the verdict was adverse to alcohol, and all efforts at subsequent conventions to have it reversed have failed.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Don't you feel sorry for the one who is always bored? Some of us adopt the pose of cynicism, of knowing all that there is to know, of having tasted all the joys life has, thinking possibly that such an attitude will impress others with a sense of our superiority.

Far from it. Unless others are very simple and houghtless. And what comfort is there in evoking he emotions of such? The ones who express boredom in words or action are the ones to whom we should give sincerest sympathy. For thus they prove the extreme narrowness of their thought life. Boredom is not a phase of accomplishment or of satisfaction with life. It is simply a phase, and not an admirable one, of the ego. The one who professes it is making an unflattering confession at the same time. Unconsciously, it may be, but none the less evident to those about.

There's many a little woman on a country farm that has joys innumerable. There's many a sturdy workman who finds the riches of the universe in family love and strivings. "But their outlook is so limited." Is it? Which is better—to have enough to fill one's horizon with joy, or to have all and fail to see its richness? The one who has little is apt to find more. The one who thinks—only thinks—that he has all, has no desire for search.

Let's get out of this deadening rut that so many of us are allowing to obstruct vision. Life is so infinitely rich, may be so infinitely full for each one of us, that we never need feel boredom, unless we ourselves build the walls that hold us in. But if we voluntarily do, why complain?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The mayor of Chicago is suing a newspaper there on a charge of libel. The allegation is that in the war the false accusation of pro-Germanism was made against him by the paper in question. The people of this country will watch the outcome with more than ordinary interest. It is true that accusations of pro-Germanism were made. They were made variously and frankly. Perhaps the paper selected to pay a soothing sum in damages had been more pertinacious than the rest, but it merely had been one of a flock.

HENRY JAMES

Many interesting facts are being brought out. A witness testified that George Sylvester Viereck had stated several days before the sinking of the Lusitania, that the vessel was going to sink. The same witness told of the activities of William Bayard Hale as an American correspondent in the pay of Germany. He added that Hale was "the greatest propagandist the world ever has seen" and had been decorated by Japan and China for services to those countries.

Many newspaper men are aware that Hale used to be the publicity man for the notorious old king, Leopold of Belgium. Rather, he might have been called a privacy man, for his duty was to soften the reports concerning atrocities due to the hard-boiled king. To this end he would misconstrue news that came by cable, and endeavor to discredit such a correspondent, as for example, the late Richard Harding Davis. This is a fact that did not come out at the trial, but is suggested by the several facts that did come out.

Early in the war a younger correspondent, one Archibald, was caught doing messenger boy work for Bernstorff and that gang. He dropped from sight, and has been out of sight ever since. And why should Hale, a much more gross offender, pass unscathed?

The news dispatches tell of the shooting of a man in New York. According to accounts a limousine rolled up to the curb where the victim, clad in overalls, was standing. Two well groomed men stepped from the machine, and without explanation, fired five bullets into the pedestrian. Then they drove on.

Limping to the hospital with his five pellets of lead still under his skin, the target complained bitterly of his treatment, but said he could not explain it. Really no explanation does come to mind readily.

Thirteen jurors were used in the Peete trial, although only twelve helped formulate the verdict. It is on the ground that the use of thirteen was unconstitutional, that lawyers are trying to reopen a case that should be regarded as closed.

While the issue, if it is an issue at all, is before some higher tribunal, Mrs. Obenchain goes on trial with thirteen jurors. Apparently this expresses the opinion of lawyers and jurists as to the point sought to be raised in the first case.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Four or five times lately I've had business dealings with a boyhood friend. He's more than that. He is a grown-up, lifelong friend. I am as certain of his honesty and squareness as I am of my own. I know that he will give me every penny that is coming to me.

For all that I have had a queer feeling that he has been giving me an absolutely fifty-fifty deal because we are old friends. It seems to me that if we had met as strangers he would have skinned me until you could observe my venous processes from away down the road. I got to talking over my old friend last night with another old friend of the two of us and he agreed.

"Jimmy," said he, "has become unconsciously selfish."

He had an odd theory. He did not believe, he said, that Jimmy knew that he was selfish. Further, if Jimmy did know he thinks that he would be more generous than he is, because a thoroughly selfish man could not be successful if he were aware of it. He would betray himself, said the commentator. He would reveal to the other party the fact that he knew himself to be a grasping, tight-fisted, winner-take-all sort of a man.

"But Jimmy had a pretty hard row to hoe when he was young," said our friend. "He met with a most superb generosity in more than one quarter. His present success is almost wholly due to the kindness with which one man treated him. But he met others, also, who were not so good, and Jimmy fought for his own flag. He had to watch the world continually to see that the world did not put something over on him. He formed the habit of trying to bend everything to his own advantage."

Our mutual friend thinks that Jimmy would be horrified if he knew the facts about himself. Jimmy has always thought of himself as generous because now and then he gives something away. In fact he is as hard as flint and as narrow as the hair-bridge over which a Mohammedan walks to paradise. He looks at the world all the time with his eyes squinted. He is forever on guard.

"He tried to be generous to you because you are old friends," said our philosophic third, "but the best he was able to give you was what was coming to you. He could be fair but he could not loosen further."

The trouble is that I'm just as tough a bargainer as Jimmy, and for the same reason. Not many of us who have fought hard escape without a few scratches on the soft parts of our souls.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

A WEAK SPINE
A deformed, rigid, and out of shape spine, is the cause of many internal afflictions. It is manifested by wry neck, unevenly drooped shoulders, protruding shoulder blade, stooping and sway back, one high hip seemingly due to a short leg; even difficulties of the lower limbs, joints, and feet are due to such weakness; a drawing pain in the back, hip and thighs is symtomatic. $200,000 STOLEN FROM HOTEL SAFE

Two Bandits Rob Fashionable St. Louis Hostelry

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—Two bandits today obtained $200,000 in cash and gems from the safe of the fashionable Washington hotel and escaped.

After holding up the night watchman, the robbers pried open the vault and rifled safety deposit boxes belonging to guests. Two confederates kept vigil outside the hotel. The loot consisted of $2000 in cash and checks and the remainder was in diamonds.

MRS. LUDLOW RETURNS
Mrs. A. R. Ludlow and little son, who went to Chandles, Ariz., about a year ago to join Mr. Ludlow, who was superintending the construction of a $150,000 building, have returned to Eagle Rock and will occupy rooms in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Hansen, 816 Rock Glen avenue, until a home can be built. Mrs. Ludlow is a teacher of music, an active member of the Eastern Star chapter and the Thursday Morning Music club. She has been missed and is welcomed back by many friends. While in Chandles she organized a music club and was otherwise active in the community. Her husband will join her later.

GIRLS' ORGANIZE
The Girls' Reserve, previously mentioned as intended for girls of high school age desirous of clean and healthful fun in the way of hikes, parties, camping, etc., organized Tuesday evening and chose Miss Mildred Bennett for their leader. They inaugurated the movement with a supper in the social hall of the Presbyterian church.

MRS. ROWE ENTERTAINS THIRTY-FIVE LADIES

Mrs. G. H. Rowe, 216 South Orange street, entertained Saturday afternoon about 35 ladies of the Baptist church with a valentine party, the invitations being valentines and the decorations of red streamers and paper hearts, carrying out the same motif, which was repeated in the heart-shaped cakes served at the refreshment table.

In response to instructions contained in the invitation each lady came dressed to represent some well-known book or play, and some of the costumes were very amusing. The list included "Looking Backward," "Song of the Shirt," "Lavender and Old Lace," "Freckles," "Come Out of the Kitchen" and others ingeniously suggested.

Mrs. T. D. Ogg, a former resident of Glendale, who is now living in Alhambra, favored the company with a couple of vocal selos. It was one of the most pleasant affairs of its kind that has taken place in Glendale in a long time.

BARONESS DE ROPP TO TELL OF RASPUTIN

PRESBYTERIANS STUDY ST. PAUL

Rev. Edmunds Preaches Second Sermon and Epistles

Rev. W. E. Edmonds at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning preached the second of a series of sermons upon the epistle to the Philippians. A resume follows:

Paul, the old warrior of the cross, was coming close to his end, in a cold prison in Rome, chained to guards. And sitting thus, he writes to his dear flock back in Philippi: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, honest, just, pure, lovely, of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." (4:8.)

Paul puts in three great fundamental things: "True," that is, relation to God; "honest," relation to man; "pure," relation to one's self. Look now at these three. Everywhere decent humanity is stealing the fruits and tying them on as the products of civilization, without having the life within from which the fruits should grow. But we are the children of a high God, having a high and rich inheritance. it ill bceomes a prince to be in a back alley with a muck-rake looking for a penny to buy a piece of pie. Children of the King, have some dignity!

One of the marks of the high-toned Christian is modesty. When beauty, talent, genius begin to show off, they sink below contempt. When spiritual gifts are used for one's glory they become objects of derision. If you are able to do anything, serve with it in the name of Christ. Moses wist not that his face shone; the seraphim covered their faces with their wings—holy modesty.

Above all else one will have a holy ambition who is a high-toned Christian. What is your ambition? To lay up for your children? Why not have ambition to enter into the service of Christ? We are children of eternity, heirs of glory, looking for a crown that fadeth not away.

RADIOPHONE GIVES LISTENERS CHANCE

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—Even the "party line" in the country, where when the phone rings everyone on the line takes off the receiver and "listens in," cannot compare with the opportunity to eavesdrop on intimate personal conversations afforded radiophone operators through California who nightly "listen in" on the conversations between "somebody" and "somebody's sweetie"—the "somebody" being on the mainland, and the "sweetie" at Catalina Island.

Communications between the mainland and Avalon are maintained by wireless telephone. The regular telephone wires for anyone desiring to "long distance" Catalina, go as far as Long eBach. Then the call is switched onto the radiophone, given to the thin air, and is eventually picked up in a regular phone booth at Avalon. Any radiophone amateur, provided he tunes up to the right wavelength, can "listen in."

The conversations are particularly interesting inasmuch as the majority of those phoning do not know that radiophone, which permits anyone to listen, is being used.

"Mushy conversations" by the score are heard, and also many heated conversations between "someone" and his "friend wife," when "someone" wants wifie to come home and quit spending money.

Radiophone operators on lonely vessels at sea get a great kick out of Avalon phone calls. And many a chuckle is afforded them on monotonous nights by "listening in." Best of all—there is no "S. R. O." on the radiophone circuit. Anyone with an outfit can do it. The air's free—like the old saying.

VISIT TO VERDUGO PROVES SUCCESS

The patriotic service at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church Saturday night proved an enthusiastic affair.

The church was decorated with flags and acacia bloom, a choir of twenty voices directed by W. F. Blaikie with Miss Gladys Sharpe at the piano and Mrs. Waldo Winger as soloist, sang Kipling's "Recessional," the congregation joined in singing "Star Spangled Banner," "Battle Hymn of the Republic," "America" and "Red, White and Blue." Mayor Spencer Robinson and Harry Girard sang in duet "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Jesus, Savior, Pilot Me," Mr. Girard singing in solo a sacred number.

Rev. J. C. Livingston, pastor of the church, delivered a fine lecture on "Lincoln, the Unconquerable." About 200 were present and the service was most inspiring.

Fashions for Americans

Plain and Flowered Chiffons Fashion This Little Blouse.

Blouse styles, especially as regards length, have a way of jumping from one extreme to the other. They very long overblouse will have a lease of life and be featured in all the shop windows, and as soon as this style shows indications of having been pushed a little too vigorously the woman who wants to be "different" will case her vote for the waist length model. This condition has been especially evident during the present season. The season started off with the hip length blouse in first place and the very long costume blouse regarded as somewhat a thing of the past. Then the long model came into its own again, and these overblouses were shown in such lengths that they looked exactly like one-piece dresses. They were that, realy, except that they were made by blouse manufacturers and displayed in blouse departments in the shops.

Now there is a considerable leaning to the short models, both of the suit and dressy type.

The sketch shows a waist length over-the-skirt blouse, combining plain and flowered chiffon with a trimming of ribbon, narrow braid, plain silk, or plain color self fabric.

This blouse opens a trifle in the back so it may be easily slipped on over the head, and is finished at the waist with a girdle of plain material that ties at the back.

Some of the very long overblouses are cut in irregular form at the lower edge, one side longer than the other, short in back and long in front, etc., so that when worn over a foundation or slip of another color the tunic effect is Sometimes a blouse that is even in distinctly pronounced and smart length will be furnished with a long sash, the ends of which hang well below the edge of the slip or underneath skirt, and, as stated above, many of the overblouses are so long that the merest edge of the undersilp shows.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

SOME FISH FACTS

By M. JESSIE LEITCH

When the newest bride came home to visit for the first time after her marriage she had a very long list of questions to ask her mother. They were almost all about foods, and what her father laughingly called food-facts. One day the conversation veered to fish, and in the little lecture the Newest Bride received from her mother were many facts that are of more than usual interest to other women, women who may also have wondered about fish.

"Why did the doctor order white fleshed fish for Tom when he was ill last winter and simply refuse to allow him to have the salmon I prepared so carefully? It was a delicious shade of pink. And it looked so nice on my green china plates."

Her father shouted. Her mother struggled with her own desire to smile and said, as she turned the pages of her own, well-used cook book:

"Fish is an important protein food, Liza, and it is because the fat in the white-fleshed fish is found principally in the liver that the white-fleshed fish is used chiefly for sick-room cookery."

Fish and Extractives

"Then fat is not good for sick people?" Liza was frowning over her big red note-book.

"Yes. But fat fish is not always good for invalids. It is so oily. And it should not be eaten by persons of weak digestion, it is believed. The dark-fleshed fish contain fat well distributed through the body, and are less delicate in flavor. All fish are rich in extractives and contain a good deal of gelatine."

"What are extractives?" said Liza.

"An extractive is exactly what the name implies—an extract, or a food accessory," explained her mother gently. "The digestibility of fish depends upon the amount of fat it contains and the coarseness of the fibre. White fish are less nutritious than the darker fish because they contain more water and less extractives and fat."

"And salt or smoked fish?" questioned Liza.

"Should not be given to the sick. Like salt fish, they are too strongly flavored and the process of curing has hardened the fibre. Fish, after all, is very much like meat in that it contains fats, salts, water and extractives. It contains less phosphorus than some meats. And the reason one tires of a steady fish diet is that fish lacks the flavoring of good fresh meat."

"Why do we use lemon and vinegar with fish?" asked Liza, who had saved up all her questions for one session.

"Because," said her father, interrupting, "the juices of fish are alkaline, and the acid neutralizes the alkali. Simple, isn't it?" he teased, smiling down on his grown-up daughter.

"And the great thing to remember," continued the mother, who knew, "is when certain fish are in season. Halibut, flounder, haddock and cod, of course, are in season all the year round. Salmon is best from May to September, and trout from April to August. Oysters, so much used for the sick, are good only from September to May. The rest of the year they are insipid.

How to Select Fresh Fish

"Don't forget that fish must be fresh. And the way to test it by careful examination. A fresh fish has bright red gills, the eyes are bright and protruding, the flesh is firm and there should be no unpleasant odor. Cases of poisoning have arisen from eating fish that was not fresh, so one cannot be too careful in marketing," she continued.

"And oysters? I should think they are most difficult," said Liza.

"To open?" asked her father. Oysters were a passion with him, so Liza's mother subsided smilingly and allowed him to explain the business of opening an oyster.

"You wash and scrub the shells under running water, then break the thin edges of the shell with a hammer, insert a strong knife to sever the muscle that holds the two shells together, remove the upper half, and wipe the edges of the shell free from sand. Then cut the muscle that binds the oyster to the lower shell," explained Liza's father.

Your Nervousness

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1921, by The Associated Newspapers.)

Because you complain of nervousness it by no means necessarily follows that you must place yourself in the care of a nerve specialist or medical psychologist. Your nervousness may be due to conditions which can readily be corrected without their aid.

This is a point I have again and again to emphasize in answering inquiries from nervous patients. People seem strangely unaware that nervousness often has its roots in simple physical defects and maladjustments.

Sometimes all that is needed to restore nervous balance is a dietary change insuring better nutrition. Persons who do not eat enough food, or eat foods they cannot well digest, are peculiarly prone to be nervous.

So are persons who eat far more than is good for them. The result may be not merely a systemic clogging, but also a systemic poisoning, of which their nervousness is a symptom.

Or, again, the nervousness which gives its victims insomnia, indigestion, and other functional disturbances may be the product of nothing more serious than unrelieved eyestrain. Provide well-fitting spectacles, and nervousness thus caused will gradually, perhaps promptly, subside.

Similarly as regards the not uncommon nervousness due to unsuspected footstrain. Tired feet and weak arches may be as productive of nervousness as eyes of which too much is demanded.

Failure to take sufficient rest, especially if accompanied by a tendency to live too intensely in general, is another frequent cause of nervousness. Compliance with the injunction, "Sleep longer, ease down, often relax," may effect a seemingly miraculous cure.

Then there are persons who make themselves nervous through prolonged failure to give themselves a due allowance of fresh air.

Sedentary workers, they take next to no outdoor exercise. In addition they perhaps work and sleep in rooms to which fresh air is given only occasional admission.

Under these conditions they suffer from a mild poisoning of which their nervousness is an outward and visible sign. And no matter what is done for them the nervousness will persist until they begin to live more hygienically.

The list of preventable and easily removable physical causes of nervousness might be greatly extended. But surely the enumeration is already sufficient to make clear why I always urge the nervous to consult their family doctors before besieging the specialists for help.

And when consulting either family physician or nerve specialist be frank. Even if questions are asked that cause embarrassment, answer them candidly.

Nothing is to be gained by attempting to deceive one's doctor. The result if the doctor actually deceived can be only a needless prolongation of the misery from which one is anxious to escape.

BARBARA'S

I DO SO ENJOY my little visits to the VIRGINIA BAKE SHOP—(you know, the new bakery in the East Broadway Public Market, 634 East Broadway)—for these I always learn something new about the art of baking! Today they were making a "bee-u-tiful" Birthday cake—all prettily frosted in the colors of the table decorations—and boasting the "realest" candy rose-buds I've ever seen! When there's a birthday in your family—just drop in a day or so before and leave your order. They'll bake a wonderful "just-like-mother-used-to-make" cake that will positively melt in your mouth! And you may have any size you wish—as well as colored icing and decorations to suit the occasion!

IT IS A WONDERFUL DEPARTMENT that Mr. Caswell has opened in the Gateway Market for his meats! All of his old friends and customers appreciate that it is well worth their while to drive down to San Fernando road and Brand boulevard in order to trade with CASWELL'S GATEWAY MEAT MARKET—for they know that there one is assured of absolutely A-1 meats at fair prices! No, it isn't necessary for Mr. Caswell to offer special reductions in order to entice his patrons—for already it has been established that he is offering the very best of meats at the right prices—week in and week out! And, my dear, do try serving some of their pork sausage for breakfast—it is absolutely pure—being made in their own factory.

CORN FRITTERS.

Two cups scraped corn, 2 level teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 cup flour, 2 beaten eggs, 1-2 teaspoon salt, pinch pepper, 1-2 cup milk, 1 tablespoon melted butter. Sift the dry ingredients thoroughly, rub in the butter and add the liquids, beat well, and fry as directed for other fritters.

CREAM PUFFS HAVE ALWAYS proved my undoing—more or less! But do you know since I've been buying them at the GATEWAY MARKET BAKERY I'm positively ashamed to 'fess up to the number I've eaten "at one sitting." My only defense is the fact that they are made of the purest of ingredients—just as light and fluffy as can be—and simply filled with real whipped cream! Yum, yum! It makes me hungry to think of them! And they are characteristic of everything at the Gateway Barkery—cake, bread, and pie—are just as tempting.

ORANGE FILLING FOR CAKE

Indeed, shee does—for it is her joy in life to single out and suggest delectable eatables — dainties to tickle the most fastidious palate your household boasts! Here's an idea—when you set about your Tuesday shopping—just follow Barbara's example—add to your list of calls the markets which she's visited—and you will be delighted at what you find! One appreciable advantage in buying at the Sanitary Bakery is the fact that they use only absolutely fresh eggs and milk. They remain open on Sundays, too, so drop in some time!

PLAIN RICE PUDDING

Four cups milk, 1-3 cup rice, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup sugar, grated rind of lemon. Wash rice, mix ingredients and pour into buttered pudding dish. JUST LOOK AT THOSE WONDERFULLY tender sirloin tips I bought at the EAST BROADWAY MEAT MARKET, 11$$ East Broadway, on the corner of Adams. Why, my dear, they'll be the most delicious Swiss steaks after I've pounded flour into them and they are crispy brown! Sirloin tips will be on sale for 30c as a Wednesday special. But for dinner I'll serve a tempting podk roast (18c the pound at the East Broadway market) with wonderful dressing and candied sweet potatoes! It is an ideal market, up-to-date and modern in every respect—and featuring, besides the very best of meats—fresh fruits and vegetables in season, as well as appetizing relishes!

I HAVE SO OFTEN READ advertisements advising one to "eat vitamins and be well"....but it wasn't until today that I discovered that the PURITY BAKERY, 718 East Broadway, make a specialty of Vitamin Health Foods! Their Vitamin Health Bread is already appreciated in many homes, but have you tasted the delectable jelly rolls made of the whole wheat Vitamin flour? It is quite the tastiest dessert I've found—and by far the healthiest! Then, too, they also make delightful cup cakes and rolls of the same flour—dainties that are well worth trying! They bake all their own goods fresh every day, including Sunday.

SEALS TO TRAIN AT BOYES SPRINGS

Two Teams and Fifteen Pitchers Are in Outfit

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—Two complete teams and 15 pitchers will comprise the Seal squad which will go into spring training at Boyes Springs, where excellent facilities have been arranged.

The Seals aren't going to have any easy time of it, as they did last year at Monterey, when bad weather delayed the training greatly.

For one thing, it means a game every day, and this should put the Seals in tip-top form to open the season.

Baseball history records that the team that takes the lead early in the season has the long end of the betting when it comes to hauling in the pennant. An early lead is hard to overcome. And the Seal management is making all preparations to put the team into such shape that it can jump into the lead, not only on playing ability, but on form.

For another thing, the large Seal squad is a guarantee against loafing even by the vets. It means lots of competition for the various jobs. And it would not be surprising, dopesters point out, for several of the youngsters to show so much that they may start the season with an old-timer or two on the bench. Furthermore, it is going to give the management a chance to size up many of the youngsters in actual play, without having to take a chance on them where games count.

It was expected that Graham would sell an outfielder or two before training commenced, but he has decided to take them all into training, and to make no deals until after the team returns for the annual series with the Chicago Cubs.

The system is going to give Miller a great chance to look over all available Seal material, and this is what Graham wants Miller to do. Which indicates that Miller is not going to be a mere figurehead.

CLAIMS OCEAN TRAVELING RECORD

Harry J. Edds Rambles Around in India on Business

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—Harry J. Eddox is believed to be San Francisco's most extensive traveler. Eddo recently left here on his 12th trip to the Orient, where he will visit China, the Philippines and the Dutch East Indies.

In previous trips he has traveled a distance of more than 350,000 miles, about 2000 of which has been made on the hurricane deck of elephants.

On this trip Eddo is journeying from Bangkok, in Siam, to Rangoon, India, a distance of 1500 miles, 500 of which will be made by elephant. The trip will require about a year to complete. Eddo will visit about 1200 hospitals in the Orient in the interest of the new hospital equipment to be manufactured at the Ried factory now being built at Irvington, Alameda county.

S. P. EMPLOYES BUY STOCK

Sixty Thousand Dollars' Worth Absorbed Since February 1

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 15.—Southern Pacific employes have purchased $60,000 worth of company stock, or nearly 700 shares, since February 1, when the company made arrangements to permit employes to buy stock on time, according to an announcement made today. The company is financing the purchase of the stock on the open market, and deducting the purchase price from the pay in small amounts. Although interest is charged, the employes are allowed the full dividends on the stock despite the fact that it may not be all paid for.

DANCER STIRS UP CHIEF OF POLICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—Chief of Police Daniel O'Brien has issued a flat denial that pretty Thelma Harvey, San Francisco dancer, ever danced at his home in her costume of a wisp of silk and a string of transparent beads. Reports from New York stated that Miss Harvey, when arrested there on a charge of "presenting an improper dance," informed the officers:

"Why, out in San Francisco, whenever the chief of police gave a party in his home he used to invite me to come and dance."

Said Chief O'Brien when informed of this remark:

"I haven't received a complete report of this case, but you can tell the people that I never had her at my home, never heard of her, and never heard of her dance. Besides, if I were going to put on a party of that kind, you can rest assured that I would not stage it at my home."

"But your father must have some profession or business," said the kindly magistrate to the small boy charged with stone throwing. "Come, come; what is he?"

"Please, sir, he's a retired bankrupt," bleated the budding George Washington.

Song for Each State

Miss Chrissie Anderson, of Ashington, D. C., has a hobby, namely, the collecting of state songs. She numbers in her collection songs from nearly every state in the Union. She has written the governor of each state requesting him to forward to her a copy of the state song and, in cases where the state is songless, has made suggestions and efforts to have some melody adopted.

THE UNFORGIVABLE SIN IS DISCUSSED

In discussing the subject, "The Unpardonable Sin" at the First Lutheran church Sunday morning, Dr. Funk said:

"It is voluntary blasphemy, a deliberate rejection of the One whom the Holy Ghost reveals to us. No man can say that Jesus is the Lord but by the Holy Ghost. Again, Paul says, 'He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses: Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing and done despite unto the spirit of grace?' It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. It is final impenitence. 'Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish.'

"The sin against the Holy Ghost does not rest with God; it is all with you. It is deciding forever against God, and rejecting the Lamb of God who takes away the sin of the world. Our text is a danger signal: 'But he that shall blaspheme against the Holy Ghost hath never forgiveness.' But if you have the least desire ever to be a Christian, you are on saving ground. Have you defrauded another? Then remember that Zachaeus confessed and made restitution; and the Saviour said, 'This day is salvation come to this house.' If any one has committed the scarlet sin, let me direct you to a scene where one was taken in the very act; but Jesus said to her accusers, 'He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone at her.' But to the woman He said: 'Neither do I condemn thee; go and sin no more.'

"Another woman reached out for help and barely touched the hem of His garment, and she was made whole. A man confessed that he was a murderer, and asked, 'Is there any forgiveness for me?' Then I remember how they murdered the Son of God, nailed Him upon the cruel tree; and yet, while they wagged their heads and railed upon Him, he prayed, 'Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do.' Yes, Christ is most merciful, 'forgiving all manner of sins.'

"But, can Christ save a drunkard? My answer is yes, and He is the only one who can save him. A man, in the throes of delirium tremens, said: 'I'm going out to die, but not in a saloon,' and he staggered out into the street. He was picked up by an old man and carried into the Tremorne mission. The next thing he knew he was listening to this prayer: 'Blessed Jesus, this poor fellow has gotten himself into an awful hole, and he can't get out. Years ago You helped me, and You have kept me out. Lord Jesus, reach down and help him.' After that prayer, by Jerry McAuley, the man rose up forgiven, a free man. He became the successor to Jerry McAuley. S. H. Hadley became a true man of God, and one of the greatest rescue missionaries the world has ever had."

The English cyclist rode on through the rain. He was drenched and splashed with mud from head to foot. He saw a country-man walking toward him.

"How far is Riston?" he asked.

"Eight miles in the other direction," was the answer.

"The other way," gasped the cyclist. "But the last sign post pointed this way to Riston."

"Ah, that post was turned round long ago to confuse the Zeppelins," answered the countryman with a knowing smile.

Perhaps the only thing more pathetic than an old woman who makes herself look like a young girl, is a young girl who makes herself up like a woman.

WARNER BEGINS WORK AT STANFORD

Famous Carlysle Indian Starts to Work His System

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Feb. 13.—Glenn Warner, football's famous exponent of Carlisle Indian fame, sat in the center of Stanford's football team recently and told them the how and why of successful football before he left here to spend the winter in Los Angeles.

It was their first lesson under the famous Warner system which will be seen at Stanford during the next two years, exen though the famous coach will not appear in person during the season.

"You must be in condition when the season opens," he told them, "and ready for playing. To do this, if you are inactive in other sports, keep at some light practice during the spring and summer.

"Basketball is good for a man who is awkward on his feet. Track is good for the slow starter. Tennis will develop your confidence in shifting.

"A quick starter is of more value to a team than a fast runner. A football player seldom runs more than ten yards. It's a matter of hitting the hole in the line of scrimmage before it is plugged.

"So the quick starter will land on the team before a fast runner."

Warner spoke of clean sportsmanship, and declared that some tricks, even those allowed by the rules, should not be employed to win games.

DIESEL ENGINES FOR AIRPLANES

Reconstruction Will Give New Powerful Safe Unit

BERKELEY, Calif., Feb. 13.—The adaptation of the Diesel engine to the airplane will probably be the next advance in aviation, according to A. F. Bonnalie, airplane expert.

At present, Bonnalie states, the Diesel engine weighs about five pounds per horse power, hence engineers have a long task before them in attempting to reconstruct the present apparatus on a scale light enough to make it practicable for the airplane.

Bonnalie also pointed out that airplane experts were all experimenting with crash-resisting gasoline tanks for planes.

In connection with the Diesel engine, he pointed out that oil offers greater danger of conflagration than gasoline. In a crash it usually ignites before gasoline does. It is possible to throw gasoline on a hot exhaust pipe, for instance, and it will evaporate without igniting, while a leak from an oil tank will cause a blaze every time.

KILDUFF WAIVERS PUZZLES FANS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—Considerable surprise has been expressed among major league fans wintering here over the passing of Pete Kilduff from the National league into the minors, with the San Francisco Seals.

The fans are unable to understand why 15 major league clubs waived on Kilduff, who is a mighty consistent man around the second sack. Why the Brooklyn Dodgers released him is still a good deal of a mystery. He is a good all-around hitter in addition to his fielding ability. Jack Miller thinks Kilduff can play short, but big league fans doubt it. If so, they point out, Brooklyn would not have released him, as they let him go after they switched Ivan Olson to second and purchased Sam Crane, shortstop, from Cincinnati. Kilduff is expected to strengthen the Seals greatly.

TIME TO CHECK 'EM UP

When General Pershing once inspected an artillery outfit of colored negro soldiers in France he was struck by the snappy neatness and soldiery bearing of one particular dusky member of a gun-team.

"What are your duties, soldier?" queried the commander-in-chief of the artilleryman, who stood like a statue beside the French Soixante Quinze.

"I'se de doah tender to de Swasohng Kans," the husky lad replied.

"And what is that?" General Pershing asked him.

"Why, I jus' opens de little doah in back o' de gun, and Rastus here throws a shell in and de corporal pulls de lonyard. Den the gun she has her little say."

"Then what do you do?" the chief demanded.

"What do we do? Huh, we jus' drops back and say: 'Kaiser, count yo' soldiers.'"

EAGLE ROCK SEES PLANS FOR NEW CITY HALL

Citizens Attend Meeting of Council and Approve Design

The meeting of the city board of trustees last Monday night was attended by all the city officers and quite a number of citizens interested in local affairs, and considerable business received attention.

Wm. L. Woollett of Los Angeles, who has been secured as architect for the new city hall, was present and exhibited his completed plans for the building. After examination they were unanimously approved and the board ordered the advertisement for bids, to be received up to March 6 and opened on that date. Bids for the entire construction will be required.

The C. F. Lamb Undertaking company, through R. L. McNitt, attorney, asked that the license of $100 a year be reduced. This establishment is on the southeast corner of Central and Palm avenues. The request was referred to the judiciary committee. C. W. Jones, who represented G. T. Peabody, asked the board to accept a deed to the city, offered by Mrs. E. E. Hamilton, for a piece of land needed to form a continuation of West Adams avenue, as an approach to a $10,000 house which is soon to be built. The deed was accepted.

It was strongly the sense of the board, as well as of the others present, that the city of Los Angeles, without further delay, should have Glassell avenue, which is directly south of Central avenue, Eagle Rock's fine boulevard, and as a part of the shortest route to Los Angeles. It has long been in such a condition that motorists avoid it whenever possible. Hence a motion for an appeal to the authorities of Los Angeles for its improvement was adopted.

C. W. Young, chairman of a chamber of commerce committee, informed the board that the new management of the Glendale-Montrose railway was ready and willing to make needed improvements, but desired the cooperation of Eagle Rock. They wish to enter the grounds owned by them near the end of the line here through the existing alley by means of a spur track, 200 feet in length, and promised not to allow any car to stand in the alley. The spur is needed to run cars off the boulevard for the loading and unloading of freight, which now has to be done in the street. They will at once build a depot and put in a cement terminal, if given this right of way. The board was favorably impressed by the plan, but asked that a petition covering the points be presented by the company.

The city attorney, O. L. Hatch, was instructed to appear for the city at the forthcoming rate hearing on the petition of the Los Angeles railway company for increased rates. He was also instructed to prepare an order for the vacation of Deane street, which is only one block in length. This was on the request of Frank A. and B. E. Lewis, who own the land on both sides of the street.

CHEVROLET AGENCY AT EAGLE ROCK

A Chevrolet agency has been established in Eagle Rock. The Holly Motor Sales, Inc., authorized dealers, have recently opened a branch at Eagle Rock in connection with the Eagle Rock garage. A line of improved Chevrolet cars are now on exhibition and the popularity of the line is in evidence by the business being done at this branch. The Holly Motor Sales has placed K. F. McCrary at this branch to look after the business and give the customary attention and service which is the policy of this firm.

A force of competent mechanics supervised by Frank McGee, manager and owner of the Eagle Rock garage, can be depended upon for all needs.

PRESTON GARAGE HAS NEW OWNERS

W. D. Pettibone and W. I. Little are the new proprietors of the big Preston garage on South Townsend avenue. They have also changed the name to the Townsend avenue garage. Besides handling automobile work of all kinds they will specialize on Cole cars, Mr. Little having had a wide experience on this particular car. Mr. Pettibone has been in the automobile game for 23 years, while Mr. Little has followed the business for over 14 years. They guarantee satisfaction, and reasonable prices.

EAGLE ROCK CLUB WOMEN MEET DESPITE RAIN

Manager of So. California Edison Co. Makes Address

Old Jupiter Pluvius was doing some of his most active work Thursday at the noon hour, but for once the clubwomen of Eagle Rock and their guests were as indifferent to weather conditions as the people up in Oregon are; they flocked from all parts of the valley to enjoy the dainty luncheon in the clubhouse and head speakers of note in the afternoon. In vain had belated ones 'phoned that morning for reservations, thinking that owing to the storm they could secure places at the tables, and the limit prescribed by the caterer had been reached. The dining room and part of the auditorium were closely set with acacia-decorated tables and a happy party of 153 ladies and two brave gentlemen found at their plates a valentine butonniere, composed of a red heart and tiny spray of acacia blossoms.

The luncheon speaker was R. H. Ballard, president and manager of the Southern California Edison Electric company. He took his hearers in imagination up to Huntington lake and explained the construction of the system which furnishes "juice" to the amount of 250,000 horse power. "California leads the world," he said, "in the lighting of residences and factories." He sketched the make-up and business methods of the company, including the insurance taken out by the employes and the pensions given them.

The club session opened with a piano solo by Miss Ruth Thompson, one of her own compositions. The president, Mrs. M. T. Lee, then turned the meeting over to Mrs. A. C. Fisk, chairman of literature, who has had 16 books published, one of which has reached a sale of over 9,000,000 copies.

Mrs. Porter began by saying that she things her writing is an inheritance from both her parents. Before she could even print, she begged her mother to "set down" the little stories and poems in her mind. Her love of birds manifested itself at an equally early age and became so large a feature of her life that she is now known all over the world as "the bird woman." A wounded chicken hawk, a dead cardinal bird, were alike a grief to her, and after her father had given her all the birds on his property to do with as she willed, she began to take pictures of them, then to study them closely in their native haunts, even in dangerous swamps. The time came when outing and recreation magazines purchased her views and later she was offered a staff position on Outing as a result of her valuable pictures. Her first book, "The Song of the Cardinal," was inspired by finding a cardinal bird that had been shot by a hunter. She took the manuscript to Richard Watson Gilder, whom she pronounced the best editor the Century ever had, and by his advice amplified it and submitted it to the Bobbs-Merrill Co., which published it. Her next book, the celebrated "Freckles," has circulated the globe and been put into seven foreign languages; also in the Braille alphabet for the blind, and was read in the trenches during the world war. Succeeding volumes were written around bird themes. "At the Foot of the Rainbow," which earned the highest criticism of all her books, was written at the request of the editor of Outing, who wanted a hunting and fishing story. A volume published in 1909 contained an account of every bird mentioned in the Bible. This, she thought, would interest Bible readers, but it proved the least successful of her books, although she had circled the world for information and illustrations. The most difficult literary work she ever did was in response to a request, in 1910, from the publishers of the International Encyclopedia, to contribute the bird part of that great compendium. She was the only woman to whom this compliment was paid. It was necessary for her, as merely one part of the task, to go through the Bible again and again, searching for the names of birds, using each letter of the alphabet and to trace the Greek and Latin denotations.

Mrs. Porter has also written a book on moths and another on insects. Her last volume, "Her Father's Daughter," which has had a very large sale, is the outcome of three years of haunting the seashore, mountains, and meadows of California. Mrs. Porter's charm of appearance and manner captivated the audience that had been increased in numbers by those who could not attend the luncheon.

Eagle Rock's beloved little singer, Mrs. Paul Elderkin, sang "At Dawning" and "From the Land of Sky-Blue Water," by Cadman, and was encored. She was accompanied by Mrs. Thompson.

One of the most famous figures in the life of California for the last 40 years, Dr. George Wharton James, was the other speaker scheduled for this notable meeting. He is the author of 46 books, metaphysical, philosophical, and inimitably descriptive of the glories of California scenery and the Grand Canyon of the Colorado. No one knows California in all its attributes better than he does, and few possess his powers of oratory and his distinguished presence. Apropos of his topic, "The Literature of California," he declared that already California has produced the most wonderful literature that the world has ever known; it is a pointing of the finger of God to the greatest civilization in history, which will be known in the future on this western coast. This statement he regards as a scientific fact.

In rapid, convincing language he then referred to the marvels of ancient civilization in India, its decline and western movement thereafter up to the present time, never going northward or southward. It centered in Nineveh, then in Greece, Rome, Charlemagne, and Great Britain. Now the United States is forging ahead, materially and spiritually, and the last stand before the highest civilization goes to the Orientals, if it continues its western course, will be on the Pacific coast. We must be prepared to take and hold the sceptre, he said, when it comes to us and the literature of California becomes dominant.

A wonderful description of California's physical features followed, her 141 mountain peaks over 9000 feet high and 31 reaching an altitude of more than 14,000 feet, her 2000 miles of seashore (including indentations), her desert more marvelous than the Sahara, her great variety of scenery quickly available by train or automobile and unexcelled in Europe, whither so many tourists flock. When he sent his book on Lake Tahoe to his eastern publishers, with whom he had a contract to write a book a year for twenty years, the editor wrote, "Where is Lake Tahoe? Who ever heard of it?" Now it is visited by large numbers of people and in time will be a more popular resort than the Italian lakes. Nowhere else in the world is the such a variety of conditions, provided by the Creator, and these manifold conditions will continue to attract the people from all quarters, he maintained.

He then spoke of the early population, which had a different spirit from any other. The pioneers possessed great power of initiative, foresight, and courage, or they would not have ventured to take the tedious and perilous journey across the continent. They were not tied down by precedents, but were imbued with the spirit of helpfulness. In the absence of laws, they practiced justice. Now we are overburdened with law and too often justice is defeated. The conditions of early settlement helped to lay the foundation for California literature. The nature writing of the state already excels that of the rest of the world. Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Joaquin Miller, Wallace and Will Irwin, and others are a wonderful galaxy of stars in the field of humor. In the realms of poetry and the short story Bret Harte ranks high, and there are Frank Norris, Herman Whitaker, Jack London, Gertrude Atherton, George Sterling, and others whose work has achieved fame. Finally Dr. James asserted, "We have begun to demonstrate that we have a great Californian literature, and I believe the time will come when that literature will be acknowledged as a power throught the world."

L. A. SECURITIES CO. OPENS AT EAGLE ROCK

Buys Dahlia Heights Lots and Plans Building Financing

The L. A. Securities company of Los Angeles, has bought 13 lots in Dahlia Heights tract, Eagle Rock, and has opened an office with H. E. Barnum & Company, and will make plans and finance those desiring to build upon this tract.

H. E. Barnum states they will commence the erection of seven houses at once on the Dahlia Heights tract, and that many more residences are planned. Mr. Barnum states that he alone sold $24,000 worth of property on this tract in three days last week, and that the demand for this high class property is growing right along!

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Cutts have come from Alliance, Neb., to visit their son and his wife and children, on West Myrtle avenue.

Eagle Rock

The card party and social given in St. Dominic's chapel hall Tuesday evening by the Catholic society was well attended despite the inclement weather and much enjoyed by all present. Handsome prizes were won by Miss Laudergan, Miss Mandel, T. J. Clancy and W. W. Clark. Sandwiches, cake, and coffee were served.

A telephone message to the Eagle Rock relatives received Wednesday afternoon, stated that Walter B. Brown and family, of whom nothing had been heard for two weeks, are well and comfortable in their mountain cabin. Fred Brown, one of the five brothers resident in Eagle Rock, who went north with a companion to investigate their condition, on reaching Lancaster found a letter relieving the anxiety that has been felt since the big storm. The canyon road, it was explained, had been impassable, but is now open and the family expect to motor home on Friday.

Honoring Mr. and Mrs. Jennings, friends from New Jersey, who motored all the way to California, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Ducker, of 145 North College View avenue, last week entertained twenty-eight former residents of Irvington, N. J., at an evening party.

Two daughters of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. L. Wilson, of West Myrtle avenue, have been engaged as nurses in the Good Samaritan hospital, Los Angeles. They were graduated from the nursing course in a New York hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Rhodes, who have been living on a ranch near Santa Ana for some time, have bought a home at 602 Chestnut street in that city. Mr. Rhodes, whose spendid tenor voice was greatly enjoyed when he resided in Eagle Rock, has a studio in Santa Ana, and many pupils. Mrs. Rhodes' mother, Mrs. E. E. Hamilton, is living with them.

Eagle Rock now has another physician, Dr. Marie A. Michel, who has practiced twenty-five years in France, Africa, and the United States, recently came here from Ely, Nev., and has established her home and office at 156 North Acacia avenue.

Miss Marie Buehler has moved into her new duplex house on Pearl street. For several years past she has lived in the duplex house on North Central avenue, owned by Mrs. L. V. Moulden.

F. H. Hohlfelder is contemplating the construction of a number of attractive bungalows, arranged as a court, on land that he owns at the head of Castle avenue.

BUILDING NOTES.

A pretty five-room bungalow is being built on North College View avenue for Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Grindall, who recently came to Eagle Rock from Minneapolis, Minn. They are old friends of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Ring.

The J. B. Brown company is building a house at 128 East Adams avenue for Mr. and Mrs. Page Noll of Los Angeles.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Benson of 152 North Kenilworth avenue are having a six-room bungalow built on the lot next to their home and will occupy it when it is finished.

Dan Carney, who has built several houses in the last year or two, has sold his recently completed bungalow at 406 West Colorado boulevard to Mr. and Mrs. Lyons of Hollywood.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lewis and children from Council Bluffs, Iowa, have had a beautiful home built at 191 West Ellenwood drive, on the corner of Los Flores. They will return to Iowa in the spring to attend to affairs there, preparatory to making Eagle Rock their permanent home.

A notable addition to the foothill homes on Beautiful Hill avenue will be the $25,000 residence about to be constructed by H. C. Christianson of Los Angeles, at the head of Ellenwood drive. It will be of plaster over a framework with tile roof, and will contain eleven rooms. The architect was E. B. Rust.

MRS. WILLIAMS SELLS OUT

Mrs. W. P. Williams, who has been conducting a dressmaking, hemstitching and jewelry shop at 216 East Colorado boulevard, and also exhibiting the beautiful Indian rugs owned by Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Johnston, had sold out to the Misses Agnes and Margaret Rasmussen, recently arrived from San Francisco. The new owners will conduct a variety store, the first in Eagle Rock. The Johnstons have an attractive new home on South Ellis avenue, built of adobe in the Spanish style, and they have prepared a basement room for the exhibition of their rugs.

Plans are drawn for the first unit, which will soon be erected.

W. J. Obidine's neat brick automobile repair shop at 612 East Colorado boulevard is completed and equipped for business. Besides fifteen years' experience in this class of work, he served in the world war as a mechanician in the aero service.

W. A. Feaster, owner of the building now occupied as a city hall, has been obliged to move his real estate office from the lot on which the Rommel company is to construct a theater, and has placed it temporarily on the other side of the street, just south of the city hall.

NEIGHBORHOOD CLUB MEETS.

A neighborhood club which meets fortnightly at the home of members for sociability and card playing, was entertained Wednesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kleine, at 154 North Central avenue, and five hundred was played. The hostess and P. W. Blumer won the prizes for the highest scores, and it was an amusing incident that Mr. Kleine and Mrs. Blumer, as the "boobies," received the consolation gifts.

The Barton Bedtime Stories

CAN A SQUIRREL SWIM?

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Having finished his very remarkable explanation of how an accident made all the difference between the beavers and the squirrels, Dr. Muskrat paused to hear the comments of his listeners.

The Widow Squirrel craned her neck over Ripple Beaver's tail. "It does look squashed," said she. "It most certainly does."

"Ah, but doctor," put in the thoughtful Chips, "if there was only one beaver and one squirrel on that oak-tree raft in the middle of the Big Flood, how come there were ever any more of them?"

"Why, they still were mates," said the doctor. "They still were the same little wood-chucky beasts who had gone to sleep in the hollow of it. And they went to housekeeping just as soon as they saw it could be done. Half of their children had squirrel tails, like their mammy, and the other half had beaver tails like their daddy. Otherwise they weren't so very different. Not while they all lived aboard the oak. 'Course, they did begin to change after the squirrels took to living in the trees for good and all, after the Flood went down."

"And the beavers?"

"They stayed right with it. They built it into the very first Beaver Dam."

"Do you mean to say they raised a family while they were still afloat?" asked Ripple. "What did they live on?"

"Birch and poplar and willow, the same as now. There were lots of other trees floating around, and they began to sprout just as nice and green as if they had their roots in the ground as soon as the sun came out warm," the old paddle-paw explained.

"That's all right for beavers, but how about the squirrels?"

"Why, they still were mates," said the doctor.

"When they wanted anything badly enough they swam for it, same as other folks."

"Of course they did," nodded the widow as she saw this was a pretty big bite of fact for Ripple to swallow. "Think we can't swim? Then you don't know squirrels. That's just what convinces me the doctor is right! Now I know the beginning of the old squirrel custom of 'wetting our tails.' Whenever we have what's called an 'acorn year'—when our other food fails—we gather in a body at the nearest stream, hundreds and hundreds of us, and swim. It's a mighty dangerous trip, but it's always worth while because we always find rich feeding at the end of it."

"Yes, but"—Ripple began, and then hesitated.

POPE & TOLLETTE TO MAKE CANDY

Arrangements are being made by the Pope & Tollette confectionery company, 111 South Brand boulevard, which when completed will enable it to manufacture all its own candy, thereby assuring the people of Glendale the finest and purest of confections. To accommodate this new department the store is being completetly remodeled. A large candy kitchen is being constructed at the rear of the building. This will be as modern as it is possible to make it, and an expert candy maker has been engaged to take complete charge of this part. The improvements will include an entire new front to the store, this to consist of tile entrance, large plate glass windows, etc. Further improvements consisting of the replacing of the tables by entire new fixtures, enlarging of the floor space, etc., will be made by this firm, the proprietors of which are J. A. Pope and J. E. Tollette, who have been in business in Glendale for the past three years.

When speaking of these improvements today, Mr. Pope said:

"We hope the people of Glendale abide with the inconvenience to which they will be put by this improvement work, but we know they will also experience a feeling of satisfaction when they see our fine renewed store."

Maud—"Why should she want her portrait painted?" Grace—"Well, she's getting too old to look well in a photograph."

He—"Why did she marry Dick? I thought she valued her freedom." She—"She did. But she couldn't bear to think of Dick having any."

MAYOR GETS NEW TITLE FROM THE BOY SCOUTS

Dubbed Honorary Tenderfoot Scout by Rising Generation

Members of the Glendale patrol of Boy Scouts of America took Mayor Spencer Robinson into the organization as an Honorary Tenderfoot Scout on Saturday afternoon. The ceremony took place on the steps of the city hall. Several talks were made by officials of the organization, after which the scout law was explained to the mayor. He was given the scout oath by Eagle Scout Benjamin Robison, Jr., a certificate of membership by Eagle Scout Robert Searles and was welcomed into the organization by the patrol members.

Nathan Rigdon, scout commissioner of the Verdugo Hills district, presented a scout guide to Mayor Robinson, and read a proclamation regarding "Boy Scout Week," from the mayor to the people of Glendale. Scout Executive H. F. Benner presented the first assistant scoutmaster in California, Robert Taylor, scoutmaster of Glendale troop No. 1. Mr. Taylor told the scouts about the organization of the boy scouts in California and what the organization really means. An interesting fact told by him is that the first troop to be organized in the state was formed at Tropico.

The scout law was given to the mayor by 11 boys, each boy stepping forward and repeating one section. After the ceremony, when the mayor was an honest-to-goodness scout, he made the following address:

"The people of Glendale elected five councilman at the last municipal election and they chose one of their members to be mayor of Glendale; therefore, in electing the mayor of Glendale an honorary tenderfoot scout, you have bestowed upon Glendale a great honor, and I am going to wear this scout badge so that all may see it, and when they see it, may the "scout's oath" come to their memory as it will to mine:

"On my honor I will try my best
To do my duty to God and my country,
To help other people at all times,
To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

"If every one in the world lived according to the scout's oath, jails would be empty and wars would never be.

"There is an old hymn, the words of which were written by Rev. W. A. Spencer, an uncle of mine, and the title of the song is "Help Just a Little," and the words of the chorus are these:

"Oh, the wrongs that we may righten,
Oh, the skies that we may brighten,
Oh, the hearts that we may lighten,
Helping just a little.

"And when we get together, we are going to learn that song, for you needn't think for one moment that I am going to be just a tenderfoot scout or an honorary tenderfoot scout; I am going to be a regular scout. I have seen a few honorary pallbearers, and I don't want to see any more. Before many years roll around I'll make you regular scouts think this honorary tenderfoot scout is a regular scout, too, anyway.

"The Boy Scouts of America is an organization that is developing our boys into greater boys, and they will grow into greater men.

"Glendale is ahead, underneath, above and behind this organization; therefore, I thank the Boy Scouts of Glendale for the great honor it has bestowed upon our city."

'MOLLY-O' COMES TO T. D. & L. TOMORROW

"Song of Life" to Be Seen Today Only at the Theatre

"Tomorrow will see 'Molly O' on the T. D. & L. theatre screen—'Molly O,' the greatest of all motion pictures, the finest portrayal by Mabel Normand, the highest achievement of Mack Sennett, a story that smacks of the truth of life—deep with pathos, love, romance, thrilling with the joy of happiness—that's 'Molly O.'" This is the statement by Ralph Allan, and he guarantees the patrons of the T. D. & L. theatre the truth of every word of it.

"Molly O" has been one of the most successful pictures ever produced—a big hit everywhere. It will be remembered by all who see it. It is for everyone. Bring the children. The manager of the T. D. & L. fully expects to break all previous attendance records with "Molly O." Remember the 3:30 show each afternoon for the school children.

By all the laws of stage and screen a director, after producing a big success, is allowed to turn out a fair offering or two before being obliged to equal precedent with another triumph. But John M. Stahl, after making the remarkable "Child Thou Gavest Me," neglected to take advantage of his professional privilege and followed it with a picture that not only equals "The Child Thou Gavest Me," for entertainment value but excels it as an audience-attraction.

The director's second independent unit production for Louis B. Mayer is entitled "The Song of Life," and, like is predecessor, is an all star offering presented through Associated First National. It will be shown today only at the T. D. & L. theatre.

The picture is a faithful reflection of life with all of the little human qualities and strong dramatic moments that belong to a story that delves beneath the surface of convention. John M. Stahl conceived the theme for "The Song of Life." Summed up it is a drama of dishes and discontent. That tells the story. In the cast are such celebrities as Gaston Glass, Grace Darmond, Georgia Woodthorpe, little Richard Headrick, Arthur Stuart Hull, Edward Peil, Wedgwood Nowell, Fred Kelsey and Miriam Bellah. Ernest G. Palmer was in charge of the photography, which is the last word in the cinematographic art. "The Song of Life" is a picture well worth going to see.

Mrs. W. A. Haines of 212 West Lomita avenue and Mrs. Bessie Omans of 529 Fairview avenue attended a banquet Friday night at Paulais, Los Angeles, given by the alumni association of Hillsdale college, Michigan.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE GREETING

Say, what do you mean when you wish me "good day?"
We meet and we greet as we pass on the way,
We talk for a moment, we come and pass on,
A wave of the hand and a smile and we're gone
We call out a greeting, a word of good cheer,
A hail in the passing that's friendly and clear,
It's the natural thing for a fellow to say,
But what do you mean when you wish me "good day?"

Good day! Put your heart in the wish and the word.
For it may be I need just that gladness the stirred
When you gave me your greeting and waved your hand,
It may have worked magic you never once planned.
Who knows but some sorrow was clouding the way
And the greeting you gave me has chased it away,
"Good courage, good fortune, good luck and good cheer!"—
All these in that greeting so friendly and clear.

Good courage to meet what the new day may bring;
Good humor to brighten, good spirit to sing;
Good strength to meet struggle; good cheer to make glad;
Good heart and courageous if it shall be sad;
Good friends and good fortune; good deeds you may do;
Good health and good work and good dreams to come true;
Yes, put your whole heart in the greeting you say,
And wish me all these when you wish me "good day!"

Oriental Ship Owners Ask for Retaliatory Aid From Government

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—Japanese shipowners are petitioning their government for protection and counter measures against the program of the United States shipping board which, as provided in the Jones act, would allow ample subsidies to private shipping companies.

The allocation by the shipping board of superior ships to the Pacific coast, and the formation of the $30,000,000 shipping pool, along with the proposed subsidy, the petition declares, will soon make it impossible for the slower and poorer ships of the Japanese marine to compete in Pacific trade.

Even today, the petition states, raw silks and other products are being carried in increasing volume on fast American and British ships.

The plan of the Japanese shipowners is to place as many superior ships of faster speed on the Pacific, the Australian, Indian and other services as are necessary to maintain the Japanese trade where keen competition with American and other foreign lines is increasing. The Japanese can already operate their vessels very much cheaper than American shipowners, but they cannot compete in the speed of shipments, or the quality of the ships in which merchandise is stored.

The petition asks the Japanese government to aid the Japanese shipowners in undertaking steps to keep pace with the Pacific competition.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH CARPENTERS' GIFT

Donate Labor and Erect House to Assist Members

Several members of the Central Christian church drove up to the Grand View tract in Glendale on Saturday and they started the construction of a house, 16x24, for a young lady, also a member of the church, to enable her to take care of her mother and brother. The members offered to furnish the carpenter work and they finished the rough work with the exception of the roof, and will go back next Saturday to complete their work. At noon a delicious dinner was served at the Learned home, Mrs. E. H. Learned being assisted by Mrs. Harry Marple and Mrs. F. F. Cole. Those who helped in the construction of this home were E. H. Learned, H. A. Marple, C. W. Bacon, F. B. Mattice, E. W. Lyon, Floyd Mercer, Frank Morrow, F. F. Cole, and Rev. C. A. Cole, pastor of the Christian church.

The Central Christian church has given about $3000 during the past year to benevolences and much credit is due them for their good work.

PROPOSE TO BOND SOLDIERS' BONUS

Smoot Favors Short Term Flotation as Against Taxation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The idea of financing the soldier bonus through a short time bond floatation is gaining converts in congress.

Senator Smoot, who Saturday night told President Harding the country would not stand for the tax method, declared to the United Press today his belief that the house bonus conferees had swung to his advocacy of the bond plan. Harding was understood to be planning an early conference with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as to bonds. Business, Smoot declared, could not stand more taxes.

PARTICULAR CUSTOMER

"You are very young to be a registered pharmacist," said the lady with the massive jaw. "I wish the proprietor to wait on me and not any young clerk."

"Where is your prescription?" inquired the proprietor, coming forward.

"I have no prescription. What I want is five 2-cent postage stamps."

A golfer was accompanied round the links by a very shabbily dressed caddie. Rather touched by this, he generously gave the boy sufficient money to buy a new outfit. The recipient tried to express his gratitude. "Oh' that's all right, my boy!" said the benefactor, cheerily. "Say nothing. Be a good lad, that's all." But the caddie could no longer restrain himself. "Please, sir," he burst out, "I'm sorry you are such a rotten player!"

STUDY OF GOSPEL FISHERMEN BY REV. PRESTON

Analyses Character of the Apostles as Shown in the Bible

Following are excerpts from Harley G. Preston's sermon on Sunday at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church, entitled "A Seven Reel Study of a Gospel Fisherman":

Andrew was not a preacher. He was not an organizer. He was not a leader. Peter and John were individualists—great leaders. Andrew co-operated. We are beginning to understand today the overwhelming value of co-operation.

Andrew is mentioned seven times in the Scripture so we might entitle the life of Andrew as a Seven Reel Study of a Gospel Fisherman.

First reel: A seeker after truth. He was a fisherman, but a fisherman does not fish all the time. He sought and he found. Men generally find what they earnestly seek.

Second reel: Andrew finds Christ. And his discovery changes his entire life.

Third reel: Andrew a soul winner. He went and told his brother Peter. "He brought him to Jesus." It is a holy contagion, this winning man. Andrew won Peter, and not many days after, Peter was winning thousands. It is as true today as then. There is no end when you bring some one to Jesus, and there is no beginning until you do bring some one to Jesus.

Fourth reel: A busy man. Andrew with his brother Peter was busy fishing when Jesus called him to life service. Andrew was busy and faithful at his work when called. An these are the sort of folks Jesus wants. He does not want idlers. God wants the biggest and busiest men in America for the biggest job in America or anywhere else. The Christianization of the world.

Fifth reel: An apostle. While Andrew is under the shadow of his greater brother Peter, still he is one of the twelve men to have conferred on them the Distinguished Service Cross of Jesus.

Christ, from which all other service crosses since down to the present time have derived their sybolism.

Sixth reel. A scout. Maybe, if we had all the facts we would find he was the originator of the Boy Scout movement. One day a crowd of several thousand people had been listening to Jesus on the mountain side, and Jesus called Phillip and said: "It is time to eat. What are we going to do to feed this crowd?" Phillip figured it would take a lot of money to buy even a slice for each one. Then Andrew spoke up: "Here is a boy with five loaves of barley bread and two little fish; but what are they among so many. But Andrew saw the only thing in sight and mentioned it. Jesus took the two small fishes and five loaves of bread and performed a miracle so that everyone had plenty. Andrew brought only a boy to Jesus, solving the great problem. Only a boy was Samuel, when he cried in the night, "Speak Lord for thy servant heareth." Only a boy was David, when selected by Samuel for king of Israel.

Only a boy with his lunch as some boys take to school, but his sandwiches fed 5000 people. Did you ever bring a boy to Jesus? We must win the boys and girls if we would save the world for tomorrow.

Seventh reel. A missionary. Finally Jesus is going up to Calvary. Some Greeks came seeking Jesus. They saw Phillip and said, "We would see Jesus." Phillip went and told Andrew, warm hearted Andrew, that world evangelism. That moment Andrew was a foreign missionary. More souls can be saved by multitudes of humble Andrews than by a few men like Peter. It is the personal work that counts.

The scientist, Sir Archibald Geikie, although a Scotchman, was not above thoroughly enjoying a joke, even though it was against his countrymen. One he told himself is about an Englishman and a Scotchman who went to Egypt together and paid a visit to the pyramids. The Englishman was lost in admiration of the wonderful sight, and precently asked his companion for his opinion. The Scotnhman shook his head sorrowfully. "Ah, mon," he said with a sigh, "what a lot of mason work not to be bringin' in any rent."

CHINESE CLASSICS IS RILEY'S THEME

Says Ancient Writings Contain Knowledge of Truths

Before touching upon the body of his discourse, Dr. Frank Riley quoted several passages from the Christian Bible, and read parallel statements from one of the "Sacred Books of the East," which proved that, although the "Chinese classics" had been written hundreds of years before the time of the great Master, Jesus the Christ, there was a knowledge of the spirit of truth or unity, the great power that connects man with the divine Source—the Creator; and of the great, unchangeable law which acts in the lives of man as well as the rest of the universe.

"When one speaks of atonement," said Dr. Riley, "he bases his statements upon what he reads in the Bible. Atonement means, according to the Greek, at-one-ment, to be at one or in unity with God—Divine Power.

"When you try to study the Bible, do not read merely words then draw conclusions from a partial understanding of the story. Study, think, desire deeply for knowledge, and light upon the subject will be given you. The Bible is a most wonderful book and most difficult to comprehend the inner significance of its teachings. It must not be taken literally: study carefully and look beneath the surface to gain its true and spiritual interpretations."

The closiig thought was Abraham Lincoln's reply to the question, "Why do you not attend any church?" He said: "When I see written above the church door these words: 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul and with all thy mind, and love thy neighbor as thyself,' and those who enter therein obey these laws, then will I become a member—I have never seen this done."

'IRON TRAIL' AT THE GLENDALE

Mose, the giant negro, who plays the part of the leader of a gang in the Rex Beach production, "The Iron Trail," which is at the Glendale theatre today and tomorrow, went on a "spirit strike" while the company was located in the deserted Alaskan village where the mining scenes were made, and it took all of the persuasive powers of R. William Neill, director, to keep him from returning to the United States and leaving the company without a "bad" black man.

At 4 o'clock one morning the company was aroused by the shouts of Mose, who kept repeating, "Oh, Lordy, Lordy, save me!" and Thurston Hall, who was the first of the company to go to the negro's assistance, found him with his head covered by his blanket and insisting that a ghost carrying a lighted candle had just been in his room. Investigation disclosed the fact that the cook, in a white apron and with a towel tied around his head, had been trying to find his assistant to start making breakfast, and had gotten into Mose's room by mistake.

ONENESS WITH GOD IS TOPIC

"What is it that has been hidden from the ages?" queried Rev. E. Morgan Isaac when lecturing last Wednesday evening to the group of earnest men and women whose interest in the subject had caused them to venture forth in the driving storm. "Man's oneness with God," was his answer. "'Look unto Me and live.' This is the one thing and it is surely coming. The kingdom of heaven, as Jesus said, is within you, and no one has power over you. What is faith? Understanding. What is understanding? Your oneness with God. Herein lies healing power."

One reform in currency that might well be hurried along is the matter of getting change back in a department store.
